INTRODUCTION.

THE object of this small edition of the first book of the Odes of Horace, is to provide such notes as may enable a boy of fair intelligence to obtain a distinct and accurate conception of the meaning of each Ode (1) as regards the exact force and construction of individual words and sentences, (2) as regards the general idea and purpose of the Ode as a complete and connected whole.

(1) With reference to words, phrases, and constructions, only such notes are given as seemed necessary to supplement, but not to supplant, the careful use of Dictionaries and Grammars: they are intended to assist the industrious in their difficulties, not to afford facilities to the indolent. For this reason no explanation is given of ordinary grammatical terms or constructions, of ordinary words, or of proper names of which even the smaller Classical Dictionaries contain an adequate account. On the other hand, even with these omissions, there is so much that is peculiar in the words which Horace employs, so much individuality in his phrases, there are so many subtle allusions and half-expressed references to literature, to history, and to national customs, that it has been difficult to compress into a moderate compass all that is even absolutely needed for a complete understanding of the text. For although the exceptional felicity and simple terseness of Horace's style render him especially adapted for the fate he would most have deprecated¹, and although his general meaning is almost transparently clear, yet this apparent simplicity and ease of style is in reality the result of consummate elaboration; a single epithet often recalls a whole chapter of history, a single phrase is often a résumé of a whole philosophical system: his language is so simple that a child may follow it, but so subtle that perhaps no Latin poetry requires more wide and accurate scholarship for its full appreciation than the Odes. Two facts may serve to illustrate this statement: one, that no author can be more widely illustrated than Horace from the whole range of classical literature, or can be himself more frequently quoted in illustration; the second, that to set an Ode of Horace even in high University Examinations is to set a sure trap for slovenly and inaccurate scholarship.

(2) With regard to the general meaning of each Ode as a connected whole, in almost every case a summary has been prefixed to the notes, with the object of making clear the line of thought running through it; and throughout attention has been carefully drawn to the connection of ideas, where that connection was not obvious, but rather hinted at or suggested than definitely expressed. It is indeed an essential of lyric

rilibus in ludis dictari carmina malis?

Epist. 1. 20. 17:

hoc quoque te manet ut pueros elementa docentem occupet extremis in vicis balba senectus.

poetry that it should be suggestive rather than descriptive, fragmentary rather than continuous¹, but no true lyric poetry, certainly not the Odes of Horace, can be fully understood without an endeavour to discern the central thought which links together into a living unity what are often apparently disunited and disjointed sentences. It is hardly necessary however to point out that this effort to obtain a general conception of a passage or poem as a whole is of primary importance in the development of the intellectual faculties, and the shortness of the Odes renders them especially adapted for boys' reading in this respect. At the same time it is a curious fact that no lyric poet has suffered more than Horace, from a want of effort to thus estimate his Odes as each an individual whole: a hundred persons can quote separate sentences to one who has a thorough conception of an entire Ode. The fact is that Horace's felicity in expressing a single thought is so unrivalled, he so abounds in those epigrammatic phrases,

‘jewels five words long,
That on the stretched fore-finger of all time Sparkle for ever,’

that those who appreciate his high poetic power to this extent think that they have fathomed the secret of his reputation because even when thus taken piecemeal, invenies etiam disjecti membra poetæ.

But indeed it is impossible to form an adequate conception of Horace without adding to the appreciation and understanding of single words and phrases the appreciation and understanding of their reference to and bearing on the whole Ode in which they are contained. In these Notes an attempt has been made to afford materials for this complete and full understanding.

On the other hand, as this is a school book, no pains have been taken to accumulate references or illustrations in large numbers, nor have varieties of readings or points of technical scholarship and rival interpretation been discussed, except in some few instances (e.g. in the notes on 2. 14 and the whole of Ode 28) where the points were of general interest and dependent for their solution rather on the possession of common sense than of exceptional learning.

Two editions I have had principally before me, and not unfrequently referred to; the large edition of Orelli because it is without a rival as an edition of Horace, and that of Mr Wickham because the tact and discrimination with which the notes are selected and arranged and the exceptional merit of the Introductions will always make it a favourite even with others than those who fear to face Orelli. The bulk of my notes however are the result of a long admiration for Horace, and have been written down without reference to any books whatever: my hope is that they are such notes as a good teacher taking a lesson vice versa would wish to lay before his pupils so that they might obtain an intelligent and thorough understanding of the author.

Solvitur acris hiemps grata vice veris et Favoni, ac neque iam stabulis gaudet pecus aut arator igni,

nec prata canis albicant pruinia.
iam Cythera choros ducit Venus imminente Luna,

Volcanus ardens urit officinae.
nunc decet aut viridi nitidum caput impedire myrto

CARMEN V.

Quis multa gracilis te puer in rosa

NOTES.

ODE I.

This ode is introductory: in it Horace dedicates his lyrical compositions to Maecenas.

‘Many and various are the pursuits and aims of men to which they cling tenaciously, glory, wealth, ease, war, sport: I, with the help of heaven, long to be a lyric poet, and if you, Maecenas, consider me one, I shall have attained the height of my ambition.’

1. Maecenas] C. Cilnius Maecenas, ‘sprung from a royal lineage,’ was of Etrurian origin, his ancestors being Lucumones or chieftains at Arretium. He was the patron and protector (praesidium) not only of Horace but of Virgil, who also addresses him as O decus, o famae merito pars maxima nostrae, Georg. 2. 40. His name continually recurs in Horace, and a knowledge of the principal facts of his life is essential.

atavis] The order is pater, avus, proavus, abavus, atavus, tritavus.

3, 4. sunt quos...iuvat] Literally, ‘There are (those) whom it delights,’ i.e. ‘some take a pleasure in...’ Sunt qui may be followed by either the subjunctive or indicative; when it takes the subj. it means ‘There are (men) of such a (character) that;’ when the indicative, it is much more definite, and the two words almost coalesce into a single pronoun=‘some.’ Cf. the Greek use of ἐστίν oí, which is declined all through as if a single word.

4. collegisse] The phrase ‘to have collected Olympic dust’ needs no explanation when we consider the cloud of dust the chariots would raise in the arena, and how likely it would cover the competitors. The perfect is used intentionally: men delight not merely in doing, but in having done a feat.

5. palma] A wreath of wild olive (olea) was the prize at Olympia, but a branch of palm was also carried by victors in all the games. The Romans introduced the practice in 294 a.c. and the use of the word is very common as synonymous with 'victory.' In Christian times the palm is a sign of those who have won the prize of martyrdom.

6. terrarum dominos] Either agreeing with deos, or acc. after exalt. In the former case it is difficult to see why the gods are specially spoken of as 'lords of earth,' in fact the words seem unnecessary, the phrase exalt. ad deos being complete without them; in the latter we must translate 'exalts to heaven (as though they had become, or as thinking themselves) lords of the world.'

7, 9. hunc . . . illum] Governed by a verb to be supplied from the general sense of ferat and exalt., e.g. it delights, it makes proud.

Of late years many scholars have advocated an entirely fresh translation of this difficult passage. They place a full stop after nobilis, make terrarum dominos the direct acc. after exalt., and hunc and illum in apposition to it, the collective word dominos being thus split up into its individual components. Terrarum dominos in this case means the Romans in opposition to the Greeks already mentioned. Translate: 'The lords of the world it exalts to heaven, one if . . . another if . . .' The awkward stop after nobilis at the end of the first line of the second stanza is a great objection to this view.

8. tergeminis honoribus] 'triple magistracies,' i.e. the curule aedileship, praetorship and consulship, the three great offices which were the object of Roman ambition.

10. Libyca] The corn-land of Italy which was continually decreasing owing to the increase of parks, vineyards, olive-yards, and pasture-lands, was yearly becoming more and more inadequate to supply the requirements of Rome, which depended largely for its supplies on Libya, Egypt, and Sicily, much as England now becomes yearly more dependent on America.

12. Attalicis condicionibus] 'Terms such as an Attalus could offer.' The wealth of these kings of Pergamus was proverbial; Pliny relates that Attalus II. made a bid of 100 talents for a single picture. The use of condicio is very classical. The word should always be spelt with a c: it is not from condo, as deditio is from dedo, but from cum and dic the root of dico, δελννμι, &c. We give to both condicio and conditio the same sound 'sh,' and hence the confusion of spelling. The Romans would have pronounced the former with a k, the latter with a t sound.

13. dimoveas] Notice the use of the 2nd person sing. in an indefinite sense='any one.' We should say here 'no one would ever move...'

Cypria] Cyprus from its situation held an important position in regard to the traffic of the Mediterranean, hence 'Cyprian barks' would be well known.

13—15. Cypria—Myrtoum—Icaris—Africum] Notice very carefully Horace's singular fondness for specializing general words such as 'ship,' 'sea,' 'waves,' 'wind,' by giving to each a local epithet: the effect is to give definiteness and reality. Numerous instances occur in almost every ode.

14. pavidus] Trembling because of his inexperience, which would make him exaggerate the dangers. Orelli says 'paridus, frequens nautarum ἐπιθετον;' but this is not so: the epithet is not a mere standard epithet for sailors, the point is that the man is afraid because he is not a sailor but a landsman. The epithets of Horace are never idle; no writer more carefully attaches a definite use to each. It is sufficient to point to the careful use of fervidis, nobilis, mobilius, proprio, patrios in the first few lines of the ode.

18. indocilis pati] See 3. 25 and note.

pauperiem] 'humble circumstances.' Pauperies is very far removed from egestas 'beggary'; it expresses the condition in which Horace himself was, or perhaps rather from which he had risen. In Od. 3. 16. 37 he describes himself as not wealthy, but free from importuna pauperies, that is to say, he was pauper, in humble circumstances, but not to such an extent as to be importuned or harassed by them.

20. partem solido demere de die] Solidus, connected with solus, δλος, that which is whole, entire: hence dies solidus, that part of the day which should not be broken into, the working part of the day. Cf. Sen. Ep. 83, hodiernus dies solidus est; nemo ex illo mihi quidquam eripuit. The next two lines shew that the reference is to taking a long siesta at noon.

22. stratus membra] 'his limbs stretched.'

lans caput] 'the gentle source.' The water flows gently and soothes him to sleep.

23. litus tubae] The tube was used by the infantry, the lituus by the cavalry. Lucan, 1. 237, stridor lituum clangorque tubarum, 'the shriek of horns and braying of trumpets,' illustrates their sound: their shape is compared by Ovid, Met. 1. 93, Non tuba directi, non aeris cornua flexi.

25. detestata] 'abhorred.' Though the verb is deponent the participle has a passive sense. This is the case with many deponent verbs, e.g. abominatus, modulatus, meditatus.

sub love frigido] 'beneath the cold heaven.' Jupiter is the god of the bright sky, and sub Jove is = sub deo or sub diu. Od. 3. 2. 5. This is clear from the etymology, Jupiter being = Diupater, and Diu being from the Sanscrit root div (whence divus, dies, Zeit, Zeit or Zeit, &c.) which indicates brightness. Cf. too Dispiter, Od. 1. 31. 5 and 3. 2. 29.

28. teretes] Teres (from tero) 'rubbed,' 'smooth,' 'round,' then generally of anything of which the form is good, shapely. So here the cords are not rough or loosely put together, but shapely and strong.

29. me] Notice the pronoun put first to indicate the transition from the pursuits of other men to that which Horace makes the object of his ambition.

hederae] Ivy was sacred to Bacchus, and in consequence, he being the god of inspiration, the symbol of poets. So Virgil, Ecl. 7. 25, Pastores hedera crescentem ornate poetam.

32. secernunt populo] So Od. 3. 1. 1, Odi profanum vulgus et arceo. The poet by his inspirations is separated from the vulgar throng to whom the world of imagination is unknown, but he is only so when the Muses are favourable, 'if neither does Euterpe restrain the pipes nor Polyhymnia shrink from tuning the Lesbian lyre.'

tibias] Plural, because two pipes, one of a higher the other of a lower pitch, were usually employed; see illustration in Smith's Dict. Ant.

34. Lesbourn] Lesbos was the native place of Terpander (700—650 B.C.) and Alcaeus, and also the island 'where burning Sappho loved and sung.' Hence the lyre is called Lesbian after the birthplace of those 'lyric bards' among whom Horace desires to be ranked.

36. sublimi...] The triple recurrence of this idea in this Ode here and lines 6 and 30 is somewhat awkward. Orelli endeavours to distinguish between the three phrases, but at any rate there is a striking resemblance between them.

ODE II.

This ode is addressed to Augustus as the almost divine protector and guardian of the Roman state. It commences with an account of the portents which indicated the wrath of the gods at the murder of Caesar (on the Ides of March B.C. 44) 1—20, alludes to the civil war which followed 20—24, asks to what god the duty of expiating the guilt of Rome shall be assigned, and finally gives the preference to Mercury, who (line 40) is supposed to take upon him the form of Augustus. The ode concludes with a prayer that Augustus may long live to guide and guard the state.

The mention of magnos triumphos in line 49 and the nature of the ode suggest the year 29 B.C. as the date of its composition. In that year Augustus returned to Rome as sole master of the Roman world, and on the 7th and following days of Sextilis (thereafter called Augustus) celebrated his triple triumph over the Dalmatians, over Cleopatra at Actium, and over the Alexandrians.

The whole ode is to be compared with the brilliant passage of Virgil, Georg. i. 465 to the end, and the description of the portents with Shakespeare, Jul. Caes. Act i. sc. 3.

2. rubente] So Milton, Par. Lost, Bk. ii. l. 173, 'should intermitted vengeance arm again His red right hand to plague us.'

3. sacras arces] Arx from arceo (Gk. ἀρκέω, ἀλκή), a place of defence. The northern summit of the Capitoline was technically called the Arx, as having been traditionally the first hill occupied as a 'stronghold.' On the southern summit was the great temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, and the two summits would naturally be termed sacra arces. The god would hardly indicate his wrath more clearly than by striking with his thunder-bolt the very temple erected in his honour.

4. Urbes] when used by itself is always the city, i.e. Rome: urbs and gentes include the whole world, cf. the well-known motto urbi et orbi.

4, 5. terruit .terruit] Horace is fond of this method of connecting stanzas or sentences by the repetition of an emphatic word. Cf. ll. 21, 23 and the next ode, ll. 24 and 26.

6. seculum..] 'The grievous days when Pyrrha bewailed strange prodigies' Monstrum = monestrum, quod monet: that which warns, a portent, prodigy.

7. Proteus] cf. Hom. Od. 4. 396, Virg. Georg. 4. 395, was the guardian of Neptune's herds of seals.

7, 8. egit visere] This use of the infinitive to express a purpose is of the extremest rarity: Dr Kennedy calls it 'a poetic Gracicism occasionally used after verbs implying motion, purpose.' Cf. Plant. Cas. iii. 5. 48, ego huc missum sum ludere. Horace is singularly fond of employing the infinitive after verbs which do not ordinarily admit it, but I can find no instance strictly parallel with this.

13. vidimus] Notice how the verb, by its abrupt and prominent position, at once brings the mind from the days of the flood to what had actually happened in the sight of living men.

13 ff. vidimus.....] Most editors take this 'we have seen the yellow Tiber, its waves hurled violently back from the shore of the Tuscan sea, advance to destroy . . .,' explaining it by reference to an old theory (mentioned in Herodotus 2. 20, Seneca Nat. Quaest. 3. 26) to the effect that floods are due to the wind blowing violently against the mouth of a river and preventing the efflux of its waters. This is objectionable, first, because it is hard to conceive that so absurd a theory was widely prevalent; secondly, because even assuming this theory and assuming litus Etruscum to mean the shore of the Tuscan sea, it is absolutely impossible to conceive how the waves of the Tiber could be said to be hurled back from it. How can a river be driven back, not by the sea, or the wind, but by the sea-coast?

Let the student take a map of Rome and observe how the Tiber flows in a straight line past the Campus Martius until its course is checked by the island of the Tiber and an ugly bend: let him then notice that on the Etrurian side (Tuscanum litus) are the lofty slopes of the Janiculum, and on the other (sinistra ripa) the low-lying districts of the Forum Boarium and the Velia, and then let him consider for himself the rendering, 'We have seen (as any citizen of Rome could have seen, without any theory as to the cause of floods) the yellow Tiber (yellower than ever with the flood), its waves hurled back with violence from the (steep) banks on the Etrurian side (against which the whole force of the stream would come), and advance (as they naturally would, checked by the river-bend and the island) to destroy, &c. . . .'. Any citizen of London might see the same effect produced by the Thames being driven back from the lofty embankment of the Middlesex shore to flood the humbler dwellings of the Surrey side.

15, 16. monumenta regis templaque Vestae] Numa Pompilius built a circular temple of Vesta and a palace (Regia) attached to it at the foot of the Palatine. Being situated close to the low region called Velia (from velum, a sail) they would stand immediately in the way of the inundation.

17. Ilia] Ilia, or Rhea Silvia, is spoken of as the wife of the river into which she was thrown, and is represented as by the 'importunity of her complaints' (nimum querens) urging her husband to avenge the murder of her great descendant, that Julius whose name recalled her own.

19. uxorius] Used of a husband who is too devoted to his wife, here of the Tiber-god, who is too willing to listen to his wife's wishes.

The third line of a sapphic stanza is so closely connected with the fourth that they read almost as one, and so render the peculiar position of uxorius admissible.

21. cives] Very emphatic, and so suggesting the full idea 'citizens against citizens,' which is also implied by the antithesis quo graves Persae melius perirent.

The whole history of the 1st century before Christ is the history of civil wars; these wars decimated the chief families at Rome: 'the ranks of youth were thinned by the crimes of their sires.' The proscriptions of Marius and Sulla, the battles of Pharsalia (a.c. 48), Philippi (a.c. 42) and Actium (a.c. 31), would be fresh in every memory.

22. graves Persae] The Persian empire, dating from Cyrus (a.c. 559), was destroyed by Alexander, but the Roman poets use the words Persae and Medi generally with reference to any Oriental people. Here Horace refers to the Parthians, who by defeating and destroying Crassus at Charras (a.c. 53) and capturing the Roman standards had made a deep impression on the imagination of the Romans.

23. quem . . .] 'What divinity is the people to invoke for (i.e. to aid) the fortunes of our falling power?'

26. imperium] Not 'empire' in the sense of a country ruled by an emperor, but in the sense of 'military sway,' the only proper meaning of imperium.

27. virgines sanctae] The vestal virgins, as guarding the eternal fire of Vesta, which was symbolical of the eternity of Rome, would be specially bound to pray for the safety of the state. They took part in all public ceremonies and were regarded as an integral and essential portion of the state. Thus when Horace wishes to say 'while Rome shall last,' he uses the expression dum Capitolium—scandet cum tacita virgine pontifex. Od. 3. 30. 8.

27, 28. minus audientem carmina] Wickham well translates 'turning a deaf ear to their litanies.' Carmen (= casmen, from a root kas, meaning to say) would be applicable to any formula of words chanted or recited.

29. partes] = duty, or task: the 'part' assigned to a man is his 'duty:' cf. Gk. μέρος.

31. nube...] from Hom. 5. 196, νεφέλῃ ἐλευντρος ὤμων; to Apollo or Phoebus, the Sun-god, the phrase is especially applicable.

32. augur] i.e. as the god of Delphi and oracles. Augur is strictly one who interprets the cries of birds, from avis, and garrere, to chatter, Gk. γάρρεω.

33. Erycina ridens] 'sweetly-smiling queen of Eryx.' Ridens = φειδωμένης. Mt Eryx was celebrated for its temple of Aphrodite, probably built by the Phoenicians to their goddess Astarte (the Ashtoreth of the Old Testament), whom the Greeks identified with Aphrodite and the Romans with Venus.

35. sive neglectum...] 'Or if thou, our founder, dost regard thy family and descendants.' Auctor, as the sire of Romulus. Augustus had built a temple to Mars Ultor in accordance with a vow made before the battle of Philippi. Respicis is used exactly as our English 'regard:' it means to turn the head round to pay attention to any one.

37. ludo] In bitter irony: the god delights in war, so Od. 3 29. 50, Fortuna is described as ludum insolentem ludere peritinar. Cf. too the use of spectacula Marti in 28. 17.

38. leves] Notice lēvis; it is identical with the Gk. λεῖος, while lēvis is identical with ἐλαχός.

39. Mauri peditis] Some would read 'Marsi' on the ground that the Moors and Numidians were all horsemen, but there is no reason to assume that foot-soldiers were never employed by them. Orelli takes peditis in the sense of 'unhorsed,' and urges that this adds to the force of the picture and gives a reason for the fierceness (acer vultus) the Moor exhibits, but I cannot think that anyone would naturally give such a special meaning to peditis in reading the stanza.

41. sive mutata...] 'Or if thou, O winged son of kindly Maia, dost change thy guise and take upon thee on earth the form of a youth (i.e. Augustus), submitting to be called the avenger of Caesar (Julius).'

iuvenem] Augustus was born B.C. 63, but juvenis includes the whole military age between 17 and 45.

42. ales] because of the petasus and talaria, the winged cap and anklets he wore as the messenger of the gods.

45. serus...redeas] 'May it be long before thou dost return.' Notice the flattery of redeas: Augustus being an incarnate deity does not merely go to heaven, but returns to it as his original dwelling.

50. pater] i.e. pater patriae, the title of which Cicero was so proud: it was only formally conferred on Augustus in B.C. 2, but had been long applied to him before in common talk.

princeps] i.e. princeps senatus, the senator whose name stood first on the censor's list. It was an honorary distinction conferred on the man of most eminent merit in the senate. Augustus received it in a.c. 26, and by the adoption and use of such a modest and republican title he hoped partially to conceal his really despotic authority. Cf. Tac. Ann. i. 1, cuncta discordis fessis civibus nomine principis sub imperium accepit.

51. Medos . . . tantos] The defeat of Crassus and loss of the eagles was still to be avenged. They were ultimately recovered a.c. 20 by negotiation, an event to which the Roman poets are never weary of alluding.

equitare] The Parthian light horsemen amid their sandy deserts were the dread of the heavy-armed Roman legionaries, who were entirely incapable of resisting their rapid and desultory attacks. Cf. Odes 2. 13, 18, and note on 1. 19, 12. The word equitare conveys also a collateral notion of careering as if in scorn.

ODE III.

'O ship that conveyest Virgil to Greece, duly deliver up the precious life entrusted to thy care. Bold indeed was the man who first trusted himself to the sea, but his was only one of the many impious attempts which men, such as Prometheus, Daedalus and Hercules, have made to transgress the limits which God in his providence has appointed: the constant renewal of these attempts prevents Jupiter from laying aside his thunderbolts of wrath.'

For Virgil's intimacy with Horace see Sellar's Virgil, pp. 120—126. Virgil and Varius first introduced Horace to Maecenas: Horace speaks of them with singular affection in Sat. 1. 5. 41 as animae quales neque candidiores | terra tulit, neque quis me sit deinceps alter—'souls than which never did earth produce purer, souls to which no second man is more closely knit than I am.' Cf. also Od. 1. 24. We only know of one visit of Virgil to Athens, namely in a.c. 19, on the return from which he died at Brundisium Sep. 21. All the Odes of the first three Books are probably of much earlier date, and therefore this Ode would seem to refer to an earlier voyage, such as may well have been undertaken by the poet of the Aeneid to visit the scenes he has aided to immortalize. Some editors feel the difficulty so much that they either suppose the Virgil mentioned not to be the poet, or even alter the name to Quintilius. For my own part I prefer to assume that Virgil visited Greece twice than to annihilate a link which connects Virgil with Horace as 'the half of life.'

1. sic...] The construction is navis, quae—debes, reddas,—sic te—regat pater. 'O ship that—owest, duly deliver up—, so may heaven direct....'

sic = so, i.e. on that condition, namely, that you duly deliver him up. Cf. our similar use of 'so help you God' in administering oaths: the Latins, however, throw the clauses with sic forward, instead of keeping them to the end.

diva potens Cyprî] Venus was not only born from the foam of the sea (ἀφροδίτη, ἀφρός), but also frequently addressed by the Greeks as Πορτία, Διμενία. For construction see Od. 6. 10.

2. fratres Helenae] Cf. Macaulay:

'Safe comes the ship to harbour
Through billows and through gales,
If once the great Twin Brethren
Sit shining on her sails.'

It is said that when in a storm the lightning flickered about the masts it indicated the presence of the Dioscuri and the safety of the ship. Italian mariners call it the fire of St Elmo. On coins, &c. Castor and Pollux are represented with a star on their foreheads.

4. obstrictis aliis praeter Iapyga] 'Keeping all but Iapyx bound in prison.' For a description of the prison-house in which Aeolus guards the unemployed winds see Virg. Aen. 1. 52 et seq. Iapyx is to be let loose because blowing from the Iapygian promontory in Apulia he would waft the traveller from Brundisium to Dyrrachium, whence he would coast along past Coreyra and then down to the Gulf of Corinth. From thence he would pass by land to Athens, so that finibus Atticis is not to be taken strictly; or else the ship might be dragged across the Isthmus of Corinth (cf. the word Ἰσθμὸς) and so actually enter the Peloponnese. The voyage to Greece round C. Matapan would be very exceptional: the most common plan was to proceed from Dyrrachium by land.

6. creditum] Notice the same metaphor in debes, reddas and facilemum.

9. robur et aes triplex] 'oak and triple brass,' or possibly 'sturdiness and triple brass, an abstract idea being thus joined with a concrete one.

10. fragilem truci] Notice how juxtaposition increases the force of the antithesis.

12. praecipitem] (prae-caput, head foremost) coming down in sudden squalls. Cf. New Test. κατὰ βῆλα λαίλαψ, and the word καταργίζω.

13. decertantem] The preposition seems to give to the verb the additional force of fighting it out to the end. Cf. Horace's use of deproeliantes, Od. 1. 9. 11, and debellata, Od. 1. 18. 9.

14. Hyadas] Seven stars in the head of Taurus which portended rain or storm. The prose Roman term for them was Suculae, or the litter of little pigs, thus indicating a derivation from ἵς ἵα, suus. The poets, as was to be expected, reject so natural and vulgar an etymology, and connect the word with ἱεῖν, to rain.

15. arbiter Hadriae] 'lord of the Adriatic.' Arbiter = ad-biter from ad and bire, an obsolete word meaning 'to go,' from the same root as salvus. An 'arbiter' therefore = one who is present (so in Milton 'the moon sits arbitress'), then 'one who stands by to witness and judge.'

16. tollere seu ponere volt freta] The first seu is omitted for convenience, as often in poetry: cf. Od. 1. 16. 19, and similar omissions of εἴτε and οἷτε in Greek. Translate 'whether he wish to rouse or calm the sea.' The winds are said to calm the sea by a curious idiom which speaks of them as causing that which their absence causes. So Sophocles, Aj. 674, θευῶν ἄψα πνευμάτων ἐκάλμει | στένοντα πέτρων. freta = frith or firth.

17. quem gradum] = 'what approach of death, what form of death's approach?'

18. siccis oculis] i.e. without weeping. Others propose to alter siccis, urging that tears do not ordinarily accompany terror, but the ancients certainly in many respects had different modes of expressing the emotions to what we have. Wickham appositely quotes Hom. Od. 20. 349, δακρύφω πίμπλαντο, of the eyes of the panic-stricken suitors.

22. prudens] i.e. providens, 'in his providence.'

dissociabili] Most adjectives in -abilis are passive, but not unfrequently the poets use them actively, so here we must translate 'dividing,' 'separating.' Cf. penetrabilis imber, in Virg., of a soaking rain; Horace, Od. 2. 14. 6, illacrimabilem Plutona = Plutona, qui non illacrimat.

25. audax perpeti] Horace is fond of this epexegetic or complementary infinitive after adjectives. It is very common in Greek, e.g. δεινὸς τληῖναι. Its use is to limit or determine the exact sense of the adjective; a man may be bold in many ways, e.g. in fighting, talking, &c., but when the infinitive is added what was deficient in the adjective is completed, a full explanation (ἐπεξηγήσις) is given.

27. Iapeti genus] 'son of Iapetus,' i.e. Prometheus, who stole fire from heaven, hid in the stem of the νάρθξ or ferula.

28. fraude mala] Probably a reminiscence of the legal phrase dolus malus, which is used in the sense of 'malice pre-pense,' when a criminal act is committed with full knowledge of its criminality, and of deliberate purpose. Others take fraus mala as = a theft disastrous (in its results), as explained in the next lines.

30. nova februm...] 'a strange (hitherto unknown) troop of fevers brooded over the earth.' Incubuit is used of things pestilential, or abominable, e.g. ill-omened birds, thick darkness, plagues. Wickham, following Orelli, gives ἐπέσκηψεν, fell upon, but incubuit (from cubare, cumbe) has a further meaning of resting, or remaining over, so as not to be got rid of.

32. semotique prius...] 'and what was before the slow necessity of distant death hastened its approach,' i.e. men, though necessarily mortal, before this lived to a great age, afterwards only for a brief span. A belief in the longevity of primaeval man seems universal.

34. Daedalus] (δαίδαλος, i.e. varied, or cunningly wrought) is the type of the over-ambitious man of science: 'over-flighty' in his ideas, we might say: the meaning of his name compels us to look for such an allegory in the legend.

36. perrupit:] Final syllable made long by ictus. Notice the vigorous, rugged, laborious character of the line; accommodation of sound to sense.

ODE IV.

'Now winter gives place to the joyous period of spring; now surely is the season for festivity. Life is short, and it is well to enjoy the present; soon in any case will the night of Death be upon us, putting a stop to earthly pleasures.'

1. Sestius was appointed consul suffectus by Augustus a.c. 23, although he had been a vigorous partizan of Brutus. Horace too had served as a tribunus militum under Brutus at Philippi, and this may have been the origin of their intimacy.

1. solvitur...] 'Keen winter relaxes his grasp with welcome change to springtime and the west wind.' solvitur: because winter binds the earth in bands of snow and ice: cf. l. 10, solutae.

2. machinae] 'windlasses' used to draw down to the sea (trahere) the barks which had been hauled up high and dry (exceas) for the winter.

5. Cytherea] From the island Kéθηρα off the S.E. of Laconia, near which the goddess rose from the sea. The second syllable is shortened for convenience in Latin, great liberty being allowed with regard to the quantity of proper names.

7. dum graves...] 'While fiery Vulcan causes the laborious workshops of the Cyclopes to glow.' Venerat dances and Vulcan toils: everything is alive. The bolts are scintillating ready for Jupiter's use in the summer when thunder is more frequent. Some consider that the use of ardens and urit close together is objectionable, both words having the same sense, and there is some authority for the reading visit: it is a pure question of taste. Notice that ardere is intransitive, urere active. Cyclopes (Κύκλωπες), one-eyed monsters, sons of Earth and Heaven, who forged the thunder-bolts of Jove in Aetna, quite distinct in conception from the Homeric Cyclopes.

9. nitidum caput impedire] 'to entwine the glossy head.'

10. solutae] Cf. l. 1. In winter frost binds up the soil: in spring Zephyro putris se gleba resolvit (Virg. Georg. 1. 44), the clod unbinds itself and crumbles under the influence of the west wind.

11, 12. immolare agna] 'It is fitting to sacrifice to Faunus whether he ask (us to sacrifice) with a lamb or prefer (us to sacrifice) with a kid.' We should say, 'either with a lamb if he ask it or a kid if he prefer it.'

The ablative after verbs of sacrificing, the victim being represented as the instrument with which the sacrifice is performed, is as common as the direct acc.: cf. facere vitula = to sacrifice with a calf: vino libare, &c.

13, 14. pauperum tabernas regumque turres] 'cottages of the poor and palaces of the great.'

15. vitae summa brevis...] 'The total of our days is small and forbids us to commence hope for a distant future.'

inchoare] = to commence what will never be completed.

16. fabulaeque Manes] We should expect fabulosi; two nouns thus put in apposition form a very remarkable construction: from a similar passage in Persius, 5. 152, cinis et manes et fabula fies, i.e. 'you will become dust, a ghost, and a mere name,' we get the sense of fabula, but no light is thrown on the construction.

17. exilis] i.e. exigilis (from exago), what is drawn out, thin, unreal.

18. regna vini sortiēre talis] At feasts a president was chosen by lot (magister, or arbiter bibendi, συμποσίαρχος, ἀρχιπικλινος, St John ii. 9, 'master of the feast'). Tesserae, or 'dice,' were used for this purpose, or tali, 'knuckle-bones:' these had four marked sides, and the highest throw was when they all came up differently; it was called jactus Veneris (Od. 2. 7. 25), the lowest throw being canis.

ODE V.

'Who is thy lover now, Pyrrha? He little knows that thou art fickle as the sea: all smiles to-day, to-morrow storm. Poor inexperienced youth! I have gone through similar dangers and escaped, thank heaven.'

A slight ode, but singularly beautiful in expression: it is in Horace's best manner as regards style; it is apparently perfectly simple because it is perfectly finished; summa ars coloris artem. Any one who disagrees would do well to attempt to omit or alter a single word, and see the effect. It is a curious fact that it is translated by Milton (Occasional Poems); it is not well translated, but even the best translation could only serve to bring out by contrast the felicity of expression in the original.

1, 2. multa in rosa urget] 'courts thee amid many a rose.'

5. simplex munditiis] Milton's 'Plain in thy neatness' may suffice as a rendering. A phrase like this admirably illustrates Horace's own precept (A. P. 47), Dixeris egregie notum et callida verbum | reddiderit junctura notum, 'Your style will be excellent if a clever juxtaposition has given a new meaning to a known word.'

8. emirabitur] Apparently only a very strong form of mirabitur.

insolens] 'unused to such changes.'

9. credulus aurea] Notice the juxtaposition. 'Who now too fond (or trusting) enjoys the golden hours of thy love.' Aureus = golden, at its best, in perfection. Cf. aurea aetas, 'the golden age.' So Schiller has 'der ersten Liebe gold'ne Zeit.'

11, 12. nescius auræ fallacis] The metaphor from the sea is still kept up. 'Ignorant how deceptive is the breeze.' The breeze of course is her fickle favour. Cf. Virg. popularis aura = the breeze of popular favour.

13. intentata nites] To inexperience her bright smiles are as alluring as the smiles of a summer sea. The brilliant phrase of Lucr. 2. 559, placidi pellacia ponti, is a close parallel.

me tabula] 'me the temple wall with votive picture declares to have hung up....'

Sailors who had escaped shipwreck were accustomed to dedicate their garments to Neptune, sometimes probably with a picture of the event, though perhaps tabula only means 'tablet.'

ODE VI.

'Your exploits, Agrippa, would be a worthy theme for Varius: his poetry is Homeric. I am not capable of treating a subject such as that of the Iliad or Odyssey: one of my poor odes would but detract from your fame. Love and levity alone befit my inconstant muse.'

M. Vipsanius Agrippa was the great minister of Augustus in war, as Maecenas was in peace: Horace had probably been urged to address an ode to him, and finding the task uncongenial substitutes this dexterous apology.

1, 2. scriberis Vario...alite] These lines present an obvious difficulty, viz. a distinct case of the use of the ablative of the personal agent without ab. Orelli and others try to avoid this by saying Vario alite is the ablative absolute, 'Varius being a bird of Maeonian song;' but this leaving scriberis alone, quite separated from Vario, seems to me utterly impossible, the sense imperatively demanding the translation 'you will be written about by Varius.' Others read aliti, but this use of the dative, though common enough with the perfect passive, e.g. scriptum est mihi (the est of course smoothing the way for it) is otherwise inadmissible.

1. scriberis] A peculiarly Horatian use of the future. 'You will be written of,' i.e. if you will take my advice. So Ode 7. 1, laudabunt alii—others shall praise, i.e. if they wish; Ode 20. 1, vile potabis—you shall drink, i.e. if you will accept my invitation.

Vario] L. Varius (see Ode 3, Introduction) was an epic writer. Cf. Sat. 1. 10. 43, forte epos acer, | ut nemo, Varius ducit. He is best known as with Plotius Tucca having been commissioned by Augustus to edit the Aeneid after the death of Virgil.

2. Maeonii] i.e. Homeric. Maeonia = Lydia. Homer, according to universal belief, was an Ionian Greek.

3. quam rem cunque] Tmesis: common in poetry.
navibus] e.g. the defeat of Sex. Pompeius B.C. 36.

5, 6. gravem Pelidae stomachum]

Μῆνιν ἀεικέθι θεοί, Πηλεΐδῃσιν Ἀχιλλῆος αἰλομένην. Hom. Il. 1. 1.

7. curvus duplicis Ulixi]

Ἄριπα καὶ ἱερὴν Μοῖσαν κατέρποντο ἐν μέλα καλλὴ ἐλάχθῃ. Hom. Od. 1. 1.

Ulixi] The gen. is from the hybrid form Ulixenus, which is declined as if it were of the 2nd declension. Cf. too Agamemni, 1. 15. 34.

8. Pelopis domum] The disasters of the house of Pelops were the stock subject for tragedies, numbers of which dealt with the crimes or misfortunes of Pelops, Atreus, Thyestes, Agamemnon, Aegisthus, Clytemnestra, Orestes, Electra, &c.

9. tenuis grandia] 'too vast a theme for our slender verse.' Tenuis is of course in agreement with the nom. versum, and grandia in apposition with the accusative stomachum, curvus and domum, but it is impossible except by a paraphrase to bring out the force of the two adjectives in their strongly contrasted and forcible position.

10. lyrae potens] So 1. 3. 1, potens Cypri; 5. 15, potens maris. Horace is extremely fond of adjectives with the genitive: adjectives especially which indicate power or abundance naturally take it; e.g. Ep. 2. 2. 31, divite rerum; and cf. the common phrases rogi compos, mentis compos.

12. culpa deterere ingeni] 'to tarnish through defect of ability.'

Notice that Horace and Virgil adopt the contracted forms ingeni, imperi, Ovid the open one ingenii.

13. tunica tectum adamantina] Cf. the Homeric expressions χαλκοθύραξ and χαλκοχιτών. Tunica, the close-fitting under-garment worn under the loose toga, is aptly applied to a coat or shirt of mail.

15. ope Palladis...] Diomedes, by the assistance of Pallas, actually wounded (hence superis parem) Aphrodite and Ares. Hom. Il. 5. 881.

16. parem]—equally matched with.

17. nos] Cf. 1. 1. 29. The antithesis is at once made clear by the prominent position of the pronoun, which is thereby contrasted with the writers already alluded to.

proelia...] 'combats of maidens fiercely attacking the young men (acrium in juvenes) with pared nails' (i.e. not wishing to hurt). Others translate sectis, 'cut to a point' (so as to be dangerous). Wickham aptly remarks 'who shall decide?'

19. vacui] i.e. sive vacui. Cf. 1. 3. 16. Translate: 'whether fancy-free, or fired by a spark of love, easy as is my wont.'

ODE VII.

'Many fair and favourite places are there on earth, none that I love so fondly as Tibur. Do you Plancus, whether as now in camp or, as you will be soon, we trust, at Tibur, remember that it is occasionally true philosophy to forget care in wine? Think of the example of Teucer in his troubles.'

L. Munatius Plancus (i.e. splay-footed), consul B.C. 42 and founder of Lugdunum (Lyons), an accomplished trimmer during the civil wars, who however seems to have enjoyed considerable favour or influence with Octavian, who received the title of Augustus on his proposal B.C. 27.

At this time he seems to have been suffering from melancholy and a desire to quit Italy. By his use of tenebit, in contrast to tenent in line 20, Horace really addresses an invitation to Plancus to come to Tibur, of which he has already sung the praises. This may seem to lay too much stress on tenent except to those who recollect that Horace is very fond of this use of the future, that he would certainly not use tenebit after tenent without a definite object, and that he wishes to suggest such a residence rather than openly propose it. Moreover this seems the only way of connecting the earlier and later portions of the ode.

1. laudabunt] Cf. Od. 6. 1, = 'others shall praise' (for all I care), i.e. let others praise.

2. bimaris] The two harbours of Corinth, Lechaëum on the Saronic Gulf, Cenchreæ on the Crissæan Gulf, are well known.

4. Tempe] Notice Tempe, neuter plural, like τείχη.

5. sunt, quibus...] 'Some there are whom sole task it is to celebrate in continuous song the city of the ever-virgin Pallas, and to place upon their brow an olive-wreath plucked from every side.'

Palladis urbem] Ἀθηνῶν, Ἀθῆνας.

6. carmine perpetuo] The poem would start with the earliest period and give the history of Athens 'in unbroken succession' (the exact meaning of perpetuo).

7. undique descriptam] Orelli gives to this the meaning, 'plucked from every spot of Attic soil,' i.e. the poet adorns his poem with accounts of every famous place in Attica. This is correct but not general enough: gathered from every side, means not only from every place in Attica, but also every famous incident in Attic history.

olivam] It was by producing the olive that Athena became the patron-goddess of the city: hence the poet's wreath is composed of olive in this case.

9. aptum dicet equis Argos] 'will tell of Argos as fit for horses.' ἵππῶσιν, Hom. Argos is neut. sing.: the form Argi is very common in Latin.

ditos] Cf. Soph. El. 9: φέρεται Μάρφας τὰς πολυχρόνους ἀπῶς.

10. me] Prominent and emphatic.

pallens Lacedaemon] The adjective 'Spartan,' as equivalent to 'enduring,' has become English. The Spartan discipline was traditionally ascribed to Lycurgus.

12, 13. Albunee, Anio, Tiburni] V. Class. Dict., or for a fuller description Burn's Rome and the Campagna. A full knowledge of the history and topography of Tibur is essential for understanding the Odes.

12. resonantis] 're-echoing,' i.e. to the roar of praeceps Anio.

13, 14. unda mobilibus pomaria rivis] 'orchards watered by restless rivulets.' Below the falls the main stream would seem to have divided into a quantity of small rills.

15. albus...] 'As the south wind is often bright (or clear) and sweeps the clouds from the darkened sky, and does not from its womb bring forth unceasing rains . . . ' albus is emphatic:

the S. wind is usually black and cloudy; sometimes however it is white, and drives the clouds away. Cf. Milton's account of the Deluge, Par. Lost, Bk. xi. 738,

'Meanwhile the south wind rose and with black wings,' &c.

17. sapiens] i.e. 'if you are wise.'

19. sen te...] 'Whether the camp glittering with ensigns possess you, or (as I hope will be the case) . . . shall possess you.'

21. Teucer...] This bringing home of a general idea or remark by adducing a special instance from mythology or history is frequent in Horace.

patrem] His father Telamon refused to receive him because he brought not back his brother with him from Troy. Cf. Soph. Ajax passim.

22. tamen] i.e. notwithstanding his troubles.

uda Lyaeo] 'moist (i.e. heated) with wine.' Udus is used like madidus, and madere, in the sense of intoxicated. Cf. Gk. βεβρεγμένος and our 'moisten one's clay.' There is however something awkward in its application to tempora.

Lyaeus (λύω), i.e. the Releaser, in Latin Liber, aptly so called here with reference to Teucer and his troubles.

23. populea] The poplar was sacred to Hercules, whose many wanderings would occur to Teucer.

25. quo nos] 'Whithersoever fortune, kinder than my sire, shall guide us, we will go . . .'

feret fortuna] Fero is the derivation of fortuna.

27. duce et auspice] An Imperator alone had the right of taking the auspices. During the Republic an Imperator always led the army into the field and so was Dux also. Under the Empire the chief of the state was perpetual Imperator, and the generals who conducted his campaigns were merely Duces. Duce et auspice is however used perfectly generally here, as we might say 'guide and guardian.'

29. ambiguam...] 'That in a new land shall arise a Salamis of doubtful name.' Ambiguam, because thereafter when Salamis was mentioned it would be 'doubtful' whether the old or the new town was referred to.

32. iterabimus] 'We will once more essay.' He had just crossed the sea once from Troy.

ODE VIII.

'Say, Lydia, why you are so eager that your love should be the ruin of Sybaria, by keeping him from all the manly exercises in which he used to excel.'

1, 2. per te deos oro] = per deos te oro. The peculiar order is idiomatic and usual. So too in Gk. Soph. Philo. 499, ὑπὲρ τοῦ θεοῦ ἐκ τῆς θεῆς . . . ἐρωτῶμαι.

2. Sybaria] A fit name for such a love-sick youth. For the history of the luxurious and effeminate town which has provided us with the word 'sybarite' see Class. Dict.

properes] Some read properas, thus making this a direct question instead of an indirect one, subordinate to dic: this is however impossible, owing to the oderit which follows, and which can scarcely be anything but the subjunctive. In l. 6 equitat is a direct question, because to continue with indirect ones would be wearisome.

3, 4. apricum campum] On sunny afternoons the broad expanse of the Campus Martius was the regular resort of all who desired air and exercise.

4. pallens] i.e. either by nature, or formerly.

6. aequales] Those of the same age, ἐκὸς αἰῶνι.

Gallica...] 'nor guide the mouth of a Gaulish steed with jagged bit.' Gaulish horses were celebrated. Lupatus is an adjective, but the plural lupati or lupata is used for 'a bit.' From the name which indicates an instrument furnished with teeth like those of a wolf, and our knowledge of the Roman character, we may infer how they treated their horses. The word temperat would be euphemistic.

8. Tiberim] A plunge in the Tiber concluded the daily exercise.

olivum] oil, used by the wrestlers. oliva = the olive-tree: cf. Gk. ἄλαιο and ἄλα.

10. neque iam...] 'And no longer has his arms black and blue with (the use of) weapons, formerly illustrious for often sending the discus and often the javelin clear beyond the limit (attained by his rivals).'

gestat] Frequentative, from gero = to wear: we cannot use the expression in English, and it is rare in Latin.

11. The discus was a flat circular stone. The statue of the Discobolos by Myron is famous. Unlike the game of quoits, the object was merely to hurl it as far as possible, hence finem is not the mark, or thing aimed at. Disco and jaculo explain armis.

12. expedire could only be used of a clear free throw, 'to send clear away.'

13, 14. marinae filium Thetidis] In post-Homeric legends (e. g. Ον. Met. 13. 162) Thetis is said to have hidden Achilles at Scyros, disguised as a maid, to keep him from Troy, where he was destined to glory and the grave. Note that the Greeks do not represent Achilles as a grim and grisly warrior, but as of fair and almost feminine aspect.

14. sub lacrimosa...] 'When the tearful fall of Troy drew near.' Sub with the acc. is used of a thing which is imminent, e.g. sub noctem, towards nightfall. Cf. next Ode, l. 19.

15, 16. virilis cultus] 'manly attire.'

ODE IX.

'Tis storm and winter outside: heap up the fire and bring forth the wine. All is in the hands of the gods, who will soon restore fine weather. Meantime to make the best of the present is wisest, and for those who are young to enjoy the days of their youth.'

1. stet] Soracte, to the north of Rome, was distinctly visible from the city, and prominent by its shape. Orelli well remarks that in summer the Italian mountains have a dim and hazy outline, but in winter are clear and well-defined. Hence stet = 'stands out clear with its white mantle of snow.'

4. acuto] (acus, acer) sharp, piercing.

6. reponens] Wickham gives 'piling again and again.' Perhaps re may be used in the very common sense of 'duly:' it was a duty to keep up a good fire on such a day.

benignus] The comparative indicates that it is to be 'with more than ordinary liberality.' Benignus is the opposite of malignus 'grudging.'

7. deproma] from the cellar, or better from the diota.

quadrimum] The poorer wines, such as the Sabine, could not be kept to a great age, as the finer vintage, such as the Falernian, could.

8. Thaliarche] An invented name. Θαλιαρχος would mean much the same as επικραταρχος, for which see Od. 4. 18.

diota] A jar with two ears (δις οτι), therefore meaning the same as amphora (ἀμφι φέρω), a jar with two handles.

9. simul] = simulac. 'As soon as they have laid to rest the winds now fighting to the death on the boiling ocean.'

13. quid sit futurum cras...] Cf. Od. 11. 8. Both lines are a concise epitome of one portion of the Epicurean philosophy, of which Horace was at any rate a professed disciple.

14. quem Fors...] 'Whatever sort of day chance shall give, add to the profit account.' lucro appone = put down to the side of gain, add as an item on the credit side.

16. puer] while young, in youth.

neque tu] By a frequent Latin idiom, when a person is described as being told to do two things, the pronoun is inserted in the second case with a view of strengthening the personal emphasis of the command. Cf. Hor. Epp. 1. 2. 63:

Hunc frenis hunc tu compece catenis.

17. virenti] Youth is always spoken of as green. The metaphor is of course from spring-time (ver = quod viret).

18. morosa] = crabbed. morosus is one who consults only his own disposition (mores): its opposite is moriger, one who consults that of others.

areae] Lit. a threshing-floor, then a broad open space in a city.

20. composita hora] 'at the trysting-hour.'

21. nunc et...] 'Now too the pleasant laugh from an inmost corner, which betrays the lurking maiden, and the token snatched from her arm or finger, resisting but feebly.'

24. male pertinaci] i.e. not resisting. For a different use of male with adjectives see Od. 17. 25.

ODE X.

An ode to Mercury, detailing his various attributes.

1. facunde] i.e. as being the god of speech. Cf. Gk. ἐρμηνεύω, 'to interpret.' Acts xiv. 12, 'And they called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercurius, because he was the chief speaker.'

2. feros cultus hominum recentum] 'the yet uncivilized customs of newly-created men.' Notice that recens bears exactly the opposite meaning to that we usually assign to 'recent.'

3, 4. voce et more] 'by the gift of language and the institution of...'

3. decorae] Because true physical beauty is impossible without proper physical exercise.

6. nuntium] 'herald.'

7, 8. callidum condere] 'skilled in hiding.' Condo=cum and do (the same root as τίθημι), to put together, store up, hide. Cf. ab-do, de-do, circum-do, man-do, &c.

9. te...] 'At you, while in the very act of terrifying you, young scamp that you were, with threatening words, unless you should have restored, at you Apollo was fain to laugh, robbed of his quiver (in the very midst of his lecture).'

nisi reddidisses] contain the very threat of Apollo in partially oblique narration. Apollo's words would be nisi reddideris.

11. dum terret] = while he was trying to frighten you. Dum takes the present ind. even with reference to past actions.

13. quin et...] He is the guide of good men on earth and good souls below. Cf. the Gk. epithets πόμπιμος and ψυχοπομπὸς as applied to him.

14. Priamus] When he went to beg the body of Hector from Achilles, Il. 24. 334. The dives is not unmeaning, but suggests the valuable presents he took with him.

17. reponis] Cf. last Ode, l. 6, 'duly placing.'

18. virga] The κηρύκειον, or caduceus, so well known in all representations of the god.

coerces] 'keep together' (cum-arceo). The ghosts (levis turba) were prone to wandering.

ODE XI.

'Do not, Leuconoe, consult the astrologers. It is better to enjoy the present and allow the future to take care of itself.'

1. ne quaesieris] The use of the perfect subj. is somewhat more polite and less imperative than that of the present.

2, 3. Babylonios tentaris numeros] 'Make trial of Babylonian astrology.' Amid the decay of real belief, superstition was at this period rife at Rome, and especially a belief in the reading of the stars. The study of astronomy, and its false sister astrology, was especially practised by the Chaldeans: cf. S. Matt. ii. 1, 'There came wise men from the east, &c.' Numeri are the calculations entered into in casting horoscopes and the like: hence the name mathematici. They were continually banished from Rome, but in vain (genus hominum . . . quod et velabitur semper et retinebitur, Tac. H. 1. 22), v. Diut. Ant. a.v. Astrologia.

5. oppositis debilitat pumicibus mare] 'weakens the sea spend its strength on the confronting rocks.' The rocks are called pumices because they were eaten into holes like those in pumice-stone.

6. sapias, &c.] 'Be wise, strain wine, and, the course of life being short, cut down distant expectations.' Wine was strained through linen or snow. spatium doubtless refers to the old metaphor of life being a sort of race-course. reseco is to cut back, prune, reduce to reasonable limits.

7. fugerit] The perfect, to express suddenness of completion. Not 'it will be going,' but 'it will be gone.'

invida] 'grudging.' Cf. for the whole line the imitation of it in Persius, Sat. 5. 153:

vixit memor leti! fugit hora, hoc, quod loquor, inde est.

8. carpe diem] Either 'pluck the flower of to-day's joys,' or 'snatch at the present day before it escape.'

ODE XII.

A courtly Ode in honour of Augustus; the sort of ode expected from time to time from a poet-laureate; it is of no great poetic power, but simple and dignified. It must have been written before the death of Marcellus, a.c. 23.

'Whom does the Muse choose to sing of in strains that may re-echo, like those of Orpheus, through the realms of poetry? What god, demi-god, or godlike man? Whatever the commencement, the end must tell of the Julian house, of Augustus, and its last-adopted scion, Marcellus.'

1. quem virum...] Imitated from Pindar, Ol. 2. 1,

τίνα θεὸν, τίν' ἥρωα, τίνα δ' ἄνδρα κελαδήσομεν;*

2. sumis celebrare] Verbs of wishing or resolving naturally take an infinitive. A slight and poetic extension of this liberty allows sumere (in the sense of 'to choose') to do the same.

3, 4. locosa imago] 'laughter-loving,' or 'sportive echo.' Cf. Vaticani montis imago, Od. 1. 20. 7. Echo is a phantom voice (imago vocis).

7. unde vocalem...] 'Whence the woods in random haste followed the music of Orpheus.' The final syllable of temere is always elided.

9. materna] i.e. of Calliope.

11. blandum et...] 'Persuasive too to draw after him with his tuneful strings the listening oaks.' blandum ducere, so v. 25, nobilem superare. V. note on 3. 25.

auritas] Lit. long-eared. Here, I think, in the sense of 'with ears pricked up.' The oaks are represented as with every leaf pricked up to catch each note. Most commentators think the word unworthy of comment: it seems to me difficult.

13. solitis] Two instances will suffice. Virg. Ecl. III. 60, A Jove principium, and Aratus, ἐκ Διὸς ἀρχώμεσθα..... τοῦ γὰρ καὶ γένος ἐσμέν (quoted by St Paul, Acts xvii. 28).

14. hominum ac deorum] Cf. Virg. Aen. 1. 230, O qui res hominumque deumque | aeternis regis imperiis.

It is to be noticed that Jupiter is rarely spoken of as on a level with the other gods: here the difference is so great as to be almost one of kind, not merely of degree. In line 50 even Jupiter is made in turn partly subordinate to the Fates.

15. varisque...] 'And regulates the universe with changing seasons.' mundum is used purposely: without Jove's regulation the world would not be mundus, κόσμος, an ordered universe, but anarchy and chaos. horae = ὥραι.

17. unde] = a quo, from whom. So Virg. Aen. 1. 6, gens unde Latinum—from whom the Latin race.

18, 19. secundum—proximos] The point depends on the difference between these two words. Secundus (from sequor) is used of that which follows, and implies that there is, if not a connection, at any rate no strongly marked gap between two things; proximus, on the other hand, merely means 'next,' and would be compatible with the existence of the widest possible gap between two things. So Virg., Aen. 5. 320, of a race, says of 'a bad second,' Proximus hinc, longi et proximus intervallo. In Macaulay's famous instance of 'Erebus first and the rest nowhere,' the second horse would be proximus, but not secundus.

21. proclis audax] Some put a full stop after this and make it go with Pallas, but the run of the verse runs against this. For Bacchus, as a courageous divinity, see Od. 2. 19, 28: he is not only the god of wine, but the god of immortal youth and vigour.

22. Virgo] The huntress Diana.

26. hunc-equis..] Hom. Il. 8. 237, Κέρταρ' ὃν ἱππόδαμον καὶ τὸν ἀγαθὸν Ἡλόδετον. Hor. Sat. II. 1. 26, Castor gaudet equis, oro progeneris eodem pugnis.

27. quorum...] Cf. Ode I. 3. 2.

29. defuit saxis agitatae humor] The wind has driven the spray and surge high on to the rocks: now it drips from them again.

31. et minax...]. 'And the threatening wave, because such is their pleasure, sinks back on the bosom of the deep.'

33. quietum] 'peaceful.' Numa Pompilius was the legendary author of most civil and religious, as Romulus was of most warlike observances.

34, 35. superbos Tarquini fasces] 'The proud sway of Tarquin'—the sway of Tarquin the Proud. Horace does not wish to mention Tarquinius Superbus as a hero; he mentions him indeed, but he is thinking of the glorious deeds connected with his expulsion. The thought of the great author of Roman freedom, Brutus, suggests the name of him who refused to survive the loss of that freedom, Cato.

35, 36. Catonis nobile letum] The suicide of Cato at Utica, after the battle of Thapsus (B.C. 46), is continually referred to with indiscriminate praise by the poets and philosophers of the succeeding century. For the frequency of suicide under the empire, see Merivale, Hist. c. 64. 'Cato's glorious death' served as a ready excuse for numerous cowards, who found or fancied themselves unable to 'bear the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.'

37. Scauros] The reference is to M. Aemilius Scaurus, consul B.C. 115 and 107, and censor B.C. 109. He accepted bribes from Jugurtha in B.C. 111, but there is no need to discuss whether he deserved the praise bestowed on him: his name is merely used as a typical one for 'a fine old Roman.'

38. Paullum] Consul with C. Terentius Varro; at the fatal battle of Cannae (B.C. 216) he refused to fly.

39. insigni Camena] 'the muse that gives renown.' Notice that in praise of these national heroes, he receives the aid of the national Camenae, not of the foreign and imported Μοῦσαι. Naevius, who was proud of the genuine national character of his poetry, in writing his own epitaph, says,

*mortales immortales flere si foret fas
flerent divae Camenae Naevium poetam.*

It is a remarkable defect in Roman poetry that it is to so great an extent an imitation of Gk. models and not the result of native inspiration.

41. incomptis capillis] Barbers were introduced at Rome B.C. 300. The elder Cato is called intonsus, Od. 2. 15. 11. These bearded ancients are a type of manly vigour.

43. saeva paupertas et...] 'Stern poverty and a farm handed down from father to son, with a modest homestead.'

The words avitus apto cum lare fundus give a very fair definition of the condition which the Romans called paupertas. It is here that of a small yeoman.

45. crescit...] A faultless line. The comparison expresses the sure, silent and steady growth of the fame of the name Marcellus. occulto aevo—'by the silent lapse of time.' aeuum = αιων, from root i, indicating 'to go'—that which passes away.

46. Marcelli] This family traced its origin to that Marcellus who won the spolia opima for the 3rd and last time B.C. 222, and conquered Syracuse B.C. 212. For the history of the young Marcellus see Dict. He married Julia, the daughter of Aspasia, A.C. 25. Virgil's famous lines, Aen. vi. 861-865, must be compared.

47. Iulium sidus] 'the star of the Julian line.'

The word 'star' is used generally in the sense of 'fortune' in reference to the astrological idea of a ruling star, and specially with reference to the comet (Iulium sidus) which appeared about the period of Caesar's death, and indicated his reception into heaven.

51. Caesaris] i.e. Augustus.

tu...] 'may'st thou reign with Caesar for thy vengeance' (Wickham).

54. egerit...] referring to the well-earned (justus) triumph in which the captives would be led through the streets of Rome.

55. subiectos...] 'The Seres and Indi who dwell close beside the coasts of the rising sun.' Subiectus here means merely to indicate close proximity. The Seres lie close up to the extreme east, which is just above or beyond them.

57. te minor...] i.e. so long as he acknowledges thee as supreme. Cf. Od. 3. 6. 5, Dis te minorem quod geris impas.

59. parum castis] = unholy. lucē: for the use of 'grossus' for idolatrous worship and rites, cf. the whole history of the children of Israel. Spots struck by lightning were held to be accursed.

ODE XIII.

'Jealousy and rage consume me, Lydia, when I hear you continually dwelling on the charms of Telephus, and see on shoulder or lip the trace of your fierce quarrels and frenzied reconciliations. Believe me, such passionate love does not last. Happy they whom a peaceful affection unites till death.'

1, 2. Telephi...Telephi] Lydia dwells with fond iteration on the beloved name.

2. roseam] 'rosy' (Wickham's 'lustrous' is wrong), so of Venus, Aen. 1. 402, rosea cervice refulsit cerea] smooth and white as wax.

3. vae meum] 'A plague upon you, my heart boils and swells with angry bile.'

4. iecur] the seat of the affections and passions, difficili = hard to deal with, irritable, savage. bile, cf. χολή and χόλος, both meaning bile and anger, and the word μελαγχολικός.

6. manent] Notice the rare use of the plural after two disjunctive particles.

8. mācerer] The a is long, but mācer: so sōpio, sōpor, fido, fides, but on the contrary rēgis, rēgo. 'By what slow-consuming fires I am inwardly wasting away.'

9. uror] Being put prominently forward, this word serves to connect this and the last sentence, which ended with ignibus. 'Yes, I burn whether quarrels rendered immoderate through wine have scarred those snowy shoulders, or your frenzied lover has left a memento with his tooth upon your lips.'

13. non...] non is not put for ne. 'You would not, if you were to listen enough to me, hope that he will be yours for ever...' Cf. Pers. Sat. 1. 6, non, si quid turbida Roma elevet, accedas, where Prof. Conington says non=ne, but the mistake is corrected in an excellent additional note at the end.

14. dulcia barbare] Note the juxtaposition. Their sweetness makes the barbarity grosser.

16. quinta parte sui nectaris] Some say quinta is merely used vaguely for a 'considerable' part. Others, with more reason, that Horace is referring to the Pythagorean division of all things into four elements, earth, air, fire and water, and a certain 'fifth existence' (quinta essentia, πεντῇ οὐσία, quintessence), of a higher nature which informed and animated the rest, and that therefore here Horace means 'the best part of her own sweetness.'

17. ter et amplius] A slight variation from the ordinary phrase terque quaterque.

20. suprema citius die] 'sooner than the day of death' is put by a natural inaccuracy for 'sooner than on the day of death.'

ODE XIV.

'Take heed, O ship, lest you drift out to sea again. Observe how shattered you already are by storms, and hasten eagerly into harbour and stay there.'

The ship is the State, which is spoken of as shattered by the storms of civil war, and in danger of drifting back into the same dangerous waters. As to date, the Ode would refer to any of the early years of the sole rule of Augustus, and it is mere guess-work assigning to it a special and definite time of composition.

Quintilian, viii. 6. 44, refers to this Ode as an instance of 'Ἀλλυγία quae aliud verbis aliud sensu ostendit, narem Horatius pro re publica, fluctuum tempestates pro bellis civilibus, portum pro pace et concordia dicit. It is obvious however that the allegory must not be pressed too closely in all its details, or a definite allusion looked for in such words as Pontica and Cycladas.

For the comparison of the State to a ship, and of statesmen to pilots, cf. Aesch. 8. c. Theb. 1, and innumerable passages of Cicero to be found in Diet. under the word gubernare.

2. fortiter occupa portum] 'By a strong effort hasten to reach harbour (before it is too late).' For occupo cf. Gk. use of ἐπάρειν with a participle, and Od. 2. 12. 28, interdum rapere occupat = is the first to snatch.

3. nonne vides...] 'Mark you not how the side is bare of rowers, and the mast damaged by the swift Afric wind, and how the yard-arms groan?...' It is better to understand sit after nudum, than with Orelli to make latus, malus and antennae all nominatives to gemant.

6. antenna = antenna = ἀντιπρυμνίη. It is from words such as this that we infer that the pres. part. passive in μυροί was common originally to both Latin and Greek. Cf. Vertumnus, alumnus, &c.

funibus] Cf. Acts xvii. 17, βυθόθεν ἐκπύρε ὑποσφύριτες τὸ πλοῖον, 'undergirding the ship.' Ropes seem to have been passed under the keel and drawn tight to prevent the timbers starting. We must always bear in mind the small size of ancient ships.

7. carinae] The plural is rare: it may be that the poet is thinking of the two sides of the keel which the ropes would hold together. Some MSS. seem to read cavernae, which is said to be 'the ribs.' Cf. Virg. Aen. 2. 19.

8. imperiosius] 'too tyrannous.' The very shape and size of the word is expressive.

10. di...] Cf. Ov. Her. 16. 112, accipit et pictos puppis adunca deos. Representations (statues or pictures?) of the gods were placed in the stern, for the sailors to invoke in seasons of danger or difficulty.

11. Pontica pinus] The forests of Pontus afforded ample material for ship-building. The suggestion that there is a reference to Sextus Pompeius the son of the conqueror of Mithradates of Pontus, is far-fetched and incredible.

13. nomen inutile] The reputation of Pontic timber would be of no avail to the ship in storm; so, the reputation derived from early history would be of no avail to Rome amid the billows of civil strife.

14. pictis] is emphatic: it is no empty decoration which can afford confidence in danger.

15. tu] 'Do thou take heed, unless thou art destined to be the sport of the winds.'

16. For debere ludibrium 'to owe a laughing-stock,' cf. Gk. γέλωτα ὀφλίσκάνειν.

17. nuper...] i.e. during the actual occurrence of the civil wars.

18. nunc...] now that they are over and threaten to revive.

19. nitentes] Cf. Od. 3. 28. 19, fulgentes Cycladas. The epithet alludes to the effect produced by the sun glistening on their marble rocks. Cf. Byron:

'The isles of Greece, the isles of Greece!
* * * * *

Eternal summer gilds them yet,
But all, except their sun, is set.'

20. Cycladas] From κύκλος, because they were in a circle round Delos.

ODE XV.

A mythical ode, in which Nereus is represented as predicting the fall of Troy to Paris when carrying off Helen.

1. pastor] 'the shepherd,' i.e. Paris. See Class. Dict. for his exposure on Mt Ida, and being brought up by a shepherd.

2. perâdus hospitam] Cf. 13. 14, dulcia barbare: the fact that she was his hostess made the perfidy specially perfidious. Od. 3. 3. 26, he is called famulus hospes. Cf. too Aesch. Ag. 401, ἑχέλιε [εἰς] τὴν πατρὶν ἀλυσίῃ γυναικί.

3. ingrato—] 'Nereus overwhelmed the swift winds with a calm that made them chafe that he might recite the deadly decrees of fate.'

ingrato might also refer to the vexation caused to Paris by the delay: for its reference to the winds cf. Virg. Aen. i. 55, illi indignantes..... of the imprisoned winds.

4. caneret] Continually used of prophetic utterance, see Dict. It indicates stately, measured speaking. We must remember too that oracles were usually delivered in hexameter verse.

5. Nereus] Cf. Hesiod, Theog. 233:

Νηρέα τ' ἀφροδίτα καὶ ἀλγίστα γέλαρε Ἰδίοτος.

mala avi] 'Evil are the omens with which thou conductest home a bride whom.....' For avis=an omen cf. augur, auspex, and their derivation, and the Gk. ἰδεῖσθαι τὸν ὄραρ, also Od. 3. 3. 61, alite lugubri.

For the evil forebodings aroused in Troy itself by the rape of Helen, see an incomparable passage Aesch. Ag. 406, beginning: ἀγούσα δ' ἀρτίεπρον Ἰλίου φθοράν.....

7. conjurata] 'Having bound themselves by an oath to...'

9. adeat] The prophetic present: the hard 'rapt into future time' sees what is destined to be already taking place.

10. quanta moves...] 'What grievous disasters thou art arousing for the race of Dardanus.' quanta funera can scarcely be the same as quot funera=how many deaths. Perhaps the phrase is a brief expression for 'how many and how grievous deaths.'

Dardanae] Wickham has a good note, that 'the poets, and especially Horace, use the names of nations and tribes as adjectives instead of the fuller derivative forms in -ius or -icus.' Cf. 2. 9. 1, Medum flumen. 3. 7. 3, Thyna merce. Virg. Aen. 6. 877, Romula tellus.

11. aegis, αἰγίς (from αἰσσω to flash, or αἶξ a goat). For a full description of it see Il. 5. 735, &c. See also Dict. Ant. s. v. for representations of Athena wearing it.

12. currus et rabiem] Notice the combination of the abstract and the concrete, 'prepares her chariot and wrath.' Orelli remarks that this is a favourite usage with Tacitus: cf. Ann. 1. 68, vulgus trucidatum est donec ira et dies permansit. For Horace's phrase cf. Hymns Ancient and Modern, 156:

'His chariots of wrath the thunder-clouds form.'

13. nequiquam] 'Vainly confident in Venus' guardianship shalt thou comb thy love-locks, and apportion on the unwarlike lute the songs that ladies love.'

Cf. Hom. Il. 3. 54:

οὐκ ἂν τοι χαλάρμη κίθαρις τά τε δῶρ' Ἀφροδίτης, ἥ τε κόμη τό τε εἶδος, ὅτ' ἐν κονίῃσι μυγείης.

Veneris praesidio] Because he had awarded her the golden apple in the famous judgment of Paris. Cf. Tennyson's Oenone.

14. pectes caesariem...] Notice the feminine softness and beauty Horace has imparted to these two lines. In all great poets the language used is, perhaps unconsciously, modified so as almost in its sound to correspond to the feelings or events they describe: a comparison between Milton's rugged power in describing Satan and Hell, and his melodious softness in portraying Eve and Paradise, well illustrates this.

15. carmina divides] Orelli explains this, 'divide the song between the voice and instrument.' But when we think of the Latin use of modi, numeri, and the English 'measure,' there would seem little doubt that the phrase means 'to set songs to a measure, or, to music.' The rendering, 'will divide songs to women,' i.e. sing one to one and another to another lady, is simple but intolerable.

16. thalamo] Cf. Il. 3. 381, of Venus saving Paris from the fight, ἐκάλυψε δ' ἄρ' ἡέρι πολλῇ | καὶ δ' εἶσ' ἐν θαλάμῳ εὐώδει κήεντι. Translate, 'in your bridal chamber.'

18. celerem sequi] Notice the infinitive. The phrase is added to distinguish this Ajax, Ὀδυσσεύς γὰρ Ἰάκω, from the greater Ajax, son of Telamon.

19. tamen heu serus...] 'For all that, though late, dust shall defile those adulterous locks.'

20. crines] Some read cultus; but 'adulterous locks' is a forcible and bold phrase for describing the curled and glossy locks of the adulterer Paris, soon to be disordered and dabbled with blood.

21, 22. exitum genti] 'Ulysses, ruin to thy race:' the dative after a noun is rare, but in this case the noun is put, with great addition to the force, for the adjective crinitus which would naturally have the dative. Let the student insert here, 'ruin of thy race,' or 'ruinous to thy race,' and observe how weak they are compared with Horace's phrase.

22. non respicias?] The sudden question gives vividness and reality = 'Look round! do you not see...?'

24. Tenebr et] Cf. 5. 36, ignis. The licence is allowed in this metre in Greek. Several MSS. have te, but this seems an obvious correction, and also makes the plural urgent very awkward.

24, 25. sciens pugnae] Homer's μάχης ἐπὶ φίλοις, and cf. citharae sciens, Od. 3. 9. 10.

26. Merionen] Charioteer of Idomeneus.

27. nosces] 'Thou shalt learn to know,' 'Thou shalt become acquainted with,' in a threatening sense. Notice distinction between nosco and nosci.

29. quem tu...] 'From whom thou shalt fly, as the stag, forgetful to graze, flies from the wolf he has seen on the opposite side of the valley, poor timid animal, panting, with head erect.'

31. sublimi] Wickham refers to the Gk. perdupot, and πνέου' ἔχει δρω, and says, 'the breath is stopped midway, can't get down, but stays at the entrance of the lungs.' That sublimis anhelitus means breath stopped at the top of the larynx. I cannot conceive: the explanation may be scholarly and scientific, but it is neither poetic nor sensible. Let any one stand before Landseer's 'Monarch of the Glen,' and say what his idea of sublimi anhelitu applied to a startled stag is.

33, 34. iracunda classis Achillei] The anger which made Achilles separate his ships and men from those of the other Greeks. For the gen. cf. Ulixei, 6. 7.

ODE XVI.

'Fair lady, do what you choose with my scurrilous verses: they were written in a passion, and passion is ungovernable. Prometheus in making man is said to have added, among other qualities, a portion of the wrath of the lion. Passion has ever proved ruinous: I too was urged by it to make my libellous attacks, which I am now eager to recant.'

This ode is a παλινῳδία or recantation. The most famous palinode is the one referred to by Horace Epod. 17. 42, infamis Helenae Castor offensus vice fraterque magni Castoris victi prece adempta vati reddidere lumina.

It was written by Stesichorus when deprived of his sight for libelling Helen; it was certainly thorough enough, for it begins by denying that Helen ever went to Troy (Plat. Phaedr. 243 A).

Whether the criminosi iambi are to be found in the extant writings of Horace or not is a question that can never be settled, and will probably therefore be always debated. Epodes 5 and 17 are most frequently referred to.

3. pones] 2nd pers. fut. for a polite imperative. ponere modum=to put a limit to them, i.e. destroy them. There is also a suggestion that the iambics had been without modus, limit, measure, moderation.

iambis] Archilochus is said to have invented the iambic, and to have employed it in his well-known lampoons. Cf. Hor. A. P. 79, Archilochum proprio rabies armavit iambo. Hence iambics became much used in such scurrilous poetry, for which indeed they are admirably adapted, the iambic being as little as possible removed from the language of ordinary life and conversation.

3, 4. sive sive] The third line of an alcaic stanza rarely ends with two dissyllables except when one of them is repeated as the first word of the fourth line: cf. 22. 7, nocte flores, nocte.

5. Diadymene] The goddess who dwells by Mount Dindymus in Phrygia, i.e. Cybele.

non adytis] 'Nor does its Pythian inhabitant equally shake (or terrify) the mind of his priests in (or perhaps 'by means of') his inmost shrine.' adytis goes in construction partly with facile, partly with quærit.

The dæron (unenterable place) was a small cavern in which was a deep cleft in the rock, over which was placed the tripod on which the priestess sat. Munro's note on Lucr. 1. 788.

The spelling with y shews that this is not a word of Latin development, but a Greek word borrowed, and reproduced in Latin letters. The Latin had no symbol for the Greek sound y (between u and i) and therefore at a late period, as is shewn by its late position in the alphabet, introduced the letter Y, the Greek T, which is therefore only found in Latin in pure Greek words, e.g. lyra, amystide (36. 14).

7. acuta] 'shrilly-sounding,' 'piercing.'

8. geminant] 'clash;' well illustrated by Lucr. 2. 635, where the Corybantes are said pulsare acribus æra, for which Horace uses the curious phrase geminare æra, i.e. to strike cymbal against cymbal.

9. tristes ut iræ] The ut comes after æque, the words non acuta sic geminant Corybantes æra coming in somewhat parenthetically as regards the main construction.

iræ] In plural, 'outbursts of passion.'

Noricus] The district of Noricum (about the Tyrol) was celebrated for its iron.

11, 12. tremendo Iuppiter...] 'nor heaven itself falling in with dreadful confusion.'

Jupiter, the god of the sky (see note on l. 26), is put for the sky itself, and ruens (as in Virgil, G. 1. 324, ruit arduus æther) expresses that heaven itself seems to be rushing in thunder, and lightning, and rain, down upon the earth.

The peculiar rhythm Iuppiter ipse ruens (which would make the 2nd half of an Ovidian pentameter) is rare in the fourth line of alcaics, doubtless as hurrying the line too much along. Here it is used effectively to express the quick descent of the deluge.

13. fertur Prometheus...] This stanza must be taken either by supplying esse after coactus, and joining coactus esse and apposuisse by et, or else by making coactus a participle and et=etiam, 'along with' or 'among the rest.'

13, 14. principi limo] 'our original clay.'

16. stomacho] Cf. 6. 6.

17. iræ] Notice how the prominent repetition of the word connects the stanzas.

18. et altis...] 'And for towering cities (ethic dative) have proved a final cause why they perished from their foundations...'

Such phrases as esse causae, dedecori, probrio, odio, and the like, with a second dative of the person or thing affected, are very frequent. stare causae is a stronger phrase than esse causae, meaning not merely 'to be a cause,' but 'to be a sure, strong, adequate cause.' The simple verb sto is always very emphatic and powerful: its brevity gives it force, cf. the well-known Stat Fortuna Domus.

21. aratrum] The walls of a new city were marked out with the plough, and so the utter destruction of a city is symbolized by the plough being driven over its walls.

insolens] 'arrogant.' The word indicates that extravagance of conduct which marks those who find themselves in a position to which they are unaccustomed.

24. celerēs] 'headstrong.'

25. furentem] Cf. Ep. 1. 2. 62, Ira furor brevis est—'Anger is a short attack of insanity.'

25, 26. mitibus tristia] mitis is often used of smooth, mellow wine, and tristis of that which is rough and bitter to the taste (cf. Virg. G. 1. 75, triste lupinum).

26, 27. dum fias] dum with the subjunctive is never temporal, but nearly always=dummodo.

'Provided that, if I recant my abuse, you become.....'

ODE XVII.

'Tyndaris, come and visit my farm. Even Faunus often quits his native haunts to guard this spot; here the goats browse in safety while he plays his pipe. Indeed all the gods love and guard me: here you will find rural abundance with full horn, repose, music and revelry without riot.'

1. Lucretilla, a Sabine mountain overhanging Horace's villa. Pan is always described as deus silvæ (and here Horace evidently identifies the Latin Faunus with the Greek Pan), and his native haunts were the mountains of Arcadia, especially Lycæus.

2. mutat] 'accepts in exchange.' Notice the difference of the construction of muto here and in the last lines of the preceding ode.

3. defendit] 'wards off,' from de and fero = to strike aside. Cf. offendo, to strike against.

aestatem] aestas = aethias (which by the laws of euphony becomes aestas) from aibo, to blaze, 'the fierce summer heat.'

4. usque] 'right on,' 'continually,' is used here in almost the same sense as semper.

6. latentes arbutos] i.e. concealed amid the other shrubs. For the fondness of goats for the leaves of the arbutus cf. Virg. Ecl. 3. 82, Dulce satis humor, depulsis arbutus haedis.

6, 7. deviae...] 'the wandering ladies of an unsavoury lord.' The expression is very peculiar even in Latin, and worse in English.

For the terms urores, mariti, applied to animals, cf. Virg. Ecl. 7. 7, Vir gregis ipse caper, and Theoc. 8. 49, ὁ τρῶς τῶν λευκῶν αἰγῶν ἀνερ.

9. Martiales] A standard epithet of wolves. It was a she-wolf that suckled the famous offspring of Mars.

Haedillae] An unknown spot. Bentley suggested haeduleae, i.e. little kids, but the word nowhere occurs, and Orelli well points out that after several references to goats in capellis and urores mariti any further reference would be objectionable.

10. utcumque] 'whenever.'

Tyndari] A purely fictitious name, as is Cyrus, l. 25.

fistula] Cf. Virg. E. 2. 32, Pan primus calamos cera coniungere plures | Instituit. The Panpipe is well known: Horace identifies Pan and Faunus.

11. Usticae] Unknown; probably a valley; cubantis = low-lying. Cf. Theoc. 13. 40, ἡμένω ἐν χώρῳ.

13. pietas] Dutiful affection, the feeling a son should bear to his father; hence the standing epithet pious applied to Aeneas because of his devotion to Anchises.

13, 14. dis est cordi] 'is dear to the gods.'

14. hic tibi copia...] 'Here abundance with horn of plenty shall flow for thee to the full (i.e. shall pour forth her treasures till you are satisfied) rich in all the glories of the country.'

16. ruris honorum] would include fruit, flowers, and the like; the gen. is partly dependent on copia, partly on opulenta, cf. Od. 4. 8. 5, dives artium.

For the legends connected with the benignum cornu (cf. our use of cornucopia) see Class. Diet. under the words 'Acheolous' and 'Amalthea.'

18. fide Teia] 'strings of Teos,' i.e. such as were struck by Anacreon of Teos, the poet of love and wine, and therefore aptly introduced here.

19. laborantes in uno] 'lovesick for the same man.' Laboro is like the Gk. πονέειν, to be in difficulties: in uno expresses the fact that the cause of the troubles of both was to be found in one man.

20. vitream] 'glassy-green:' all sea-nymphs are represented as of the colour of sea-water. So they are called caeruleae; the Gk. word is βάλινος.

21. innocentis Lesbii] 'harmless Lesbian.' The Romans imported wine from Lesbos and also from Chios, cf. Epod. 9. 34, Chia vina aut Lesbia. Innocens is used in the sense in which an Irishman would say of whiskey, 'There's not a headache in a hog'shead.'

22. duces] 'quaff:' the word indicates to take a long deep draught (duco = I draw), and always implies drinking with gratification. Cf. Od. 3. 3. 24.

22, 23. Semeleus Thyoneus] Thyoneus' mother was called both Semele and Thyone, but the word Thyoneus is here obviously used with reference to its derivation (Thyō, Thyōnē) = the god of rage and revelry.

25. suspecta] i.e. of infidelity, and therefore afraid of the jealous rage of headstrong Cyrus.

male dispari] = very badly matched. Winkham well says 'male intensifies the unfavourable force of the adjective.' It is an entirely different use from male summi insanus, and would seem to be only used with adjectives that convey an idea of blame.

28. immeritam] You have never deserved such treatment, much less therefore has your poor innocent dress. Cf. use of immeritus Sat. 2. 8. 7.

ODE XVIII.

'You cannot do better, Varus, than plant abundance of vines at Tibur. Total abstainers find life full of care: on the other hand, many instances warn us of the dangers of intemperance. Bacchic orgies have their risks: self-love, self-glorification, and bad faith too often follow in their train.'

1. nullam severis] For use of perf. subj. in polite prohibitions cf. 11. 1.

The line is closely imitated in metre and sense from Alcaeus, of whom we possess the fragment μηδὲν ἄλλο φειτέσθαι πρότερον δινδριον ἀμυλῶ.

Vare] Unknown. He may be the same as the Quinctilius (Varus) of Ode 24, q. v.

2. Tiburis et moenia Catili] For Tibur see 7. 18. Catillus is said to have been the son of Amphiarus and to have been the father of three sons, Tiburtus, Coras, and Catillus, who founded Tibur and called it after the eldest.

Horace uses the form Catillus for convenience: Virg. Aen. 7. 673 has Catillus. So we have both Porœna and Porœnna.

3. siccis] V. note on udus, 7. 22. The word seems rather conversational and commonplace than poetical.

4. mordaces] Cf. Aesch. Ag. 103, θυμοβόρος λύπη, 'cark-ing, soul-consuming anxiety.' Cf. the Homeric phrase δν θυμὸν κατέδων, eating his heart.

aliter] 'by any other means,' i.e. than by avoiding becoming one of the sicci or total abstainers.

5. gravem militiam crepat] 'keeps harping on the hardships of campaigning.' crepat = παταγεῖ. We use the phrase, 'to rattle on about a thing.'

7. at, ne quis...] 'But lest any one transgress that use of his gifts which modest Liber allows, the combat . . . warns us, and so does . . .'

For this quarrel at the marriage of Pirithous king of the Lapithae with Hippodamia see Class. Diet. It is especially known as forming the subject of the sculptured metopes of the Parthenon, executed by Phidias, and now in the British Museum.

8. super mero] 'over the wine,' or perhaps 'after:' it is very difficult to find a parallel to the use of super here. Others say 'on account of,' and compare Od. 3. 18. 7, super urbe curas.

9. non levis Euius] non levis = 'very severe;' an euphemistic use, very common in some writers, and especially in Thucydides, e.g. οὐχ ἥσσον = very much more. Cf. too 24. 17, non levis, and 37. 32, non humilis.

Euius, i.e. the god to whom the cry εὐοῖ is addressed.

10. cum fas...] 'When men in their eagerness (or passion) distinguish right and wrong only by the narrow limit that lust determines,' i.e. lust or passion induces men to neglect the broad distinction between right and wrong, and persuades them that there is very little difference between the two, in fact that in many cases they shade absolutely into one another.

11. discerno = dis, apart, and cerno, κρίνω, I separate.

Bassareu] from βασσάρα, a fox-skin worn by Bacchants.

candide] in all the glow (candeo) of youth.

12. quatiam] = 'arouse' or 'disturb,' at the same time the word has reference to the brandishing of the thyrsus.

nec variis . . .] 'nor recklessly bring to light things concealed beneath varied leaves.'

He refers to certain sacred chests or arks containing the vessels, &c. for the mysteries, only produced on certain solemn occasions, at other times covered with leaves.

13. tense] = 'check.' He suddenly appeals to Flaccus to restrain the exciting Phrygian music, which he represents himself as actually hearing, and which too soon leads to frenzy.

Berecynthio] i.e. such as were used in the worship of Cybele on Mt Berecynthus. Cf. Dindymene, 16. 5.

14. tympana] From térro, timbrals.

15. plus nimio] A very frequent phrase = Gk. ὑπερβαλόν, 'far too much' or 'too much by far.'

16. arcanique Fides...] 'Faith prodigal of secrets, more transparent than glass.' There is much power in describing Faith which is unfaithful as Faith notwithstanding: the antithesis between what it is and what it ought to have been is made very vivid.

ODE XIX.

'Venus is determined that I should again be the victim of love; and it is Glycera who inflames my passion. Venus attacks me with all her power and forbids me to sing of wars or anything but what concerns herself. Quick, slaves, quick! an altar and a victim! let us endeavour to appease the imperious goddess.'

1. saeva] because of the noted cruelty and imperiousness of love.

2. Semeles] Orelli thinks the Gk. form of the genitive ought to be preferred, though the MSS. give Semelae, a Latin form.

4. snittis...] 'To devote myself again to the amours that (I had hoped) were done with.'

7. grata protervitas] 'charming recklessness' or 'petulance.'

8. lubricus aspici] Aspici is the epexegetic infinitive, necessary to explain the epithet lubricus as applied to a face. As a road is too slippery and glassy for the feet to stand on, so her face is too dazzling and deceptive for the eyes to rest on.

11. versis animosum equis] 'courageous with retreating steed.' The sudden onset of the Parthian light cavalry, and the showers of arrows they had been trained to pour into the enemy while riding away, had been fatally experienced by the heavy-armed Roman legionaries on the sandy plains of Charrae and never forgotten.

Cf. Virg. Georg. 3. 31, Fidentemque fuga Parthum versisque sagittis. We use the expression 'a Parthian arrow' of a sarcasm launched by a person just retiring and which cannot therefore be replied to.

13. vivum caespitem] Fresh-cut, living turf, to form an impromptu altar.

14. verbenas] A technical word of uncertain derivation, applied to all boughs or green things used in religious rites.

16. mactata] 'She will come with lessened violence when we have sacrificed a victim.'

macto is an active verb from the root mag (cf. magis, major = magior, μακρὸς) and means (1) to increase or magnify, hence mactare deos extis, to honour the gods with entrails, (2) to sacrifice, as here, the word having become confined to the religious meaning of honouring by sacrifice.

ODE XX.

An invitation to Maecenas to come and see him at his Sabine farm. The wine he can offer will be poor, but had been specially bottled by himself in honour of an interesting event in Maecenas' life.

1. potabis] 'You will drink if you accept my invitation' = I shall be glad if you will come and drink.

Sabinum] Wine grown in the immediate neighbourhood, which was not celebrated for its wine.

2. Græca testa] For use of Greek wine cf. 17. 21. The jar would retain some of the aroma of the nobler vintage (Quo semel est imbuta recens serrabilis odorem | testa diu, Epist. 1. 2. 69) and impart it to the Sabine wine. Cf. the practice of keeping whiskey in old sherry casks.

ipse] marks the care he had bestowed on it.

3. conditum levi] 'stored up and smeared' (with pitch). Cf. Od. 3. 8. 9.

Hic dies . . . corticem astrictum pice dimovebit amphoræ.

Pitch was used for thus securing the cork from the effects of mildew and the like, just as we use wax or a leaden capsule.

4. plausus] He was cheered on entering the theatre after an illness. Cf. Od. 2. 17. 25.

5. eques] It has been well pointed out that there is force in this reference to the fact that Mæcenas remained contented with the comparatively humble position of an eques, when the poet is inviting him to his own humble roof. Bentley's suggestion of clare for care spoils the whole friendliness and pleasantness of the ode, and is on a par with many of the suggestions of that eminent and eccentric scholar.

paterni] Cf. 1. 1. 1 and Od. 3. 7. 28. The Tiber is called Tuscus alveus.

6, 8. locosa imago] See note on 12. 2.

7, 8. Vaticani montis] Wickham's note is 'The theatre of Pompey, which was the only one finished at this time, stood at the S. end of the Campus Martius, so looking across the Tiber on the Janiculan and Vatican hills.'

9. Caecubum, &c.] For these wines see any Dict. of Ant. The Caecubus ager is in Latium, so is Formiæ. Cales and the Falernus ager are in Campania. They are all expensive and luxurious wines.

domitam] = 'pressed.'

10. tu bibes uvam] Tu is strongly contrasted with mea, the luxury of Mæcenas' own palace with what he will find at Horace's farm. The fut. bibes is by no means easy: Orelli says it is the ordinary concessive future (as in 7. 1 and 6. 1), 'Do you drink, for all I care' or 'You shall drink for all I care,' but this translation seems very inappropriate here. Munro (Journal of Philology, 1871, p. 350) advocates rides in the sense of provide instead of bibes, and for the meaning 'provide' compares Ter. Heaut. 3. 1. 48, aliud lenius sodes ride, 'please provide something mellow.'

11. temperant] The vines are said to 'qualify his cups.' The usual expression is 'to qualify wine (with water) in cups:' temperare is the regular term for mixing wine with water.

Personally I am not satisfied with this explanation, and suggest that temperare pocula = 'to mellow cups,' i.e. fill them with mellow wine, thus bringing out the contrast with the rough, harsh, Sabine wine, which could not be said to afford a mellow draught.

ODE XXI.

An Ode in honour of Apollo and Diana to be sung by a chorus of youths and maidens. Orelli is probably right in considering the ode too slight to have been written for any great public occasion: the other commentators amuse themselves by guessing what the occasion may have been, the best conjecture being that of Franke who suggests the year 28 B.C. when the temple of Apollo on the Palatine was dedicated (see Ode 31) and quinquennial games instituted in memory of the battle of Actium in honour of Apollo and Diana. For the whole ode cf. the Carmen Saeculare. Apollo and Diana always go together under numerous names, e.g. Phoebus and Phoebe, Janus (Dianus), Diana, Sol and Luna, Apollo and Artemis: they are the male and female representatives of the same power.

2. intonsum] In Homer ἀκρσεκβμης: he is represented as eternally youthful. His statues are numerous: note especially the Apollo Belvedere.

Cynthium] Cynthus is a mountain in Delos.

3. Latonam] or Leto was the mother of both Apollo and Artemis in the island of Delos, Zeus being their father.

5. vos] = virgines.

laetam Euvlla —] Because she was a huntress: her favourite haunts are subsequently specified.

coma] = foliage. Cf. Odys. 23. 196, ἐν κοφῇ ἄνερ τερροφάλλων ἐλάει.

6. Algidus, a mountain in Latium near Tivoli and the Alban Mt.

7. nigra] Dark, gloomy, introduced to contrast the dark timber of Erymanthus with the fresh green of Cragus and thus give pictorial effect. Cragus is in Lycia, Erymanthus in Arcadia.

11. insignem] Understand Apollinem, humero being = 'as to his shoulder.'

fraterna] Invented by Mercury (cf. Od. 10) and given to Apollo.

13. Nec...] Apollo could not only bring plagues (cf. Hom. Il. 1. 42—52) but avert them; in Greek tragedy he is constantly invoked as Ilard or the Healer.

15. Persas atque Britannos] i.e. the remotest barbarians of the East and West. The Britons were as yet only known from the hurried expeditions of Julius Caesar.

16. agat] 'shall drive away.'

ODE XXII.

'The just and innocent need no protection, Fuscus, through whatever dangers their path leads them. At any rate I know that a monstrous wolf did not attack me while I was wandering in the woods thinking of Lalage. In any climate I shall feel safe and contentedly sing my lady's charms.'

Of Aristius Fuscus our principal knowledge is derived from Horace, Ep. 1. 10. 3, where he says,

*paene gemelli
fraternis animis, quidquid negat alter et alter, annuimus pariter retuli notique columbi.*

He seems to have been a man of studious tastes, and distinguished as a critic (grammaticus).

1. integer vitae] 'He who is blameless in (respect to) his life.' So Ovid Met. 9. 441, integer aevi. The grammarians call it the gen. of respect.

integer] (from in, tango) indicates that which is free from all taint or blemish.

sceleris] is a simple partitive genitive, purus being = having no share in.

2. Mauris] Merely pictorial.

5. Syrtes aestuosas] Orelli prefers the rendering 'the scorching desert that borders the Syrtes' and compares aestuosa Calabria, 31. 5. It seems simpler to take Syrtes in its ordinary sense and translate, 'the boiling or stormy Syrtes,' and to compare Od. 2. 6. 3, Barbaras Syrtes ubi Maura semper Aestuat unda.

6. inhospitalem] Aesch. Prom. Vinct. 20 calls the Caucasus ἀπάνθρωπος πάγος.

7, 8. fabulosus Hydaspes] This river (the Jelum) is a tributary of the Indus: it was on its banks that Alexander defeated Porus (B.C. 327). It is called fabulosus as being in the unexplored East about which numberless stories would be current at Rome.

8. lambit] 'washes.'

9. namque] He proves his general statement by an instance that had occurred to himself. He attributes the same almost sacred poetic character to himself, Od. 3. 4. 9, where the birds cover him with leaves for protection. So too Od. 2. 17, and the di me tuentur of 17. 13.

10. et ultra...] 'And wandered beyond my boundaries in utter carelessness, a wolf fled from me though unarmed, a monster such as neither...'

11. curis expeditis] Cares harass and hamper us (impediunt), hence, curis expeditis, when the bonds of care are unloosened, a man is at ease, careless: it was in such a moment of perfect freedom and poetic abstraction that Horace ran into danger.

14. Daunias] That part of Apulia near Mt Gargarus; so called from Daunus who there founded a kingdom. The word is formed on the model of Gk. adjectives feminine.

15. Iubae tellus] i.e. Mauretania or Numidia. Juba I., king of Numidia, committed suicide after the battle of Thapsus. His son was made king of Numidia by Augustus, a.c. 30, and in a.c. 25 received Mauretania instead: the latter date is fixed by some as the date of the ode. Gaetulian lions are most frequently referred to by the poets, but that does not prove that Iubae tellus is here = Gaetulia.

17. pigris campis] 'lifeless plains.' He refers to the frigid zones. For a description of the five zones, two frigid, two temperate, and one torrid, see Virg. G. 1. 233—239.

For pigris cf. bruma sacra, 4. 7. 12: extreme cold of course checks vegetation and life.

19. quod latus...] 'That quarter of the world over which ever lower mists and an ungenial sky.'

22. in terra domibus negata] i.e. uninhabitable. According to Virgil, l. c., the temperate zones alone were habitable.

23. dulce ridentem] dulce is really a cognate acc. As you can say dulcem risum ridere, you can say dulce ridere. So perfidum ridere and innumerable other instances.

ODE XXIII.

'You avoid me like a timid fawn, Chloe, that is frightened at every sound. Yet I am no tiger or lion, and you are old enough to quit your mother's side.'

4. silvae] Notice this trisyllabic form. We must remember that the Romans pronounced V like a semi-vowel.

5. nam seu...] 'For whether the arrival (=first breath) of spring has shivered among the quivering leaves...'

5, 6. veris adventus] implies the thought of the gentle rephyr which accompanies it. Cf. Lucr. 5. 736:

it ver et Venus et veris praenuntius ante pennatus graditur Zephyrus.

5. inhorrui] beautifully expresses the shivering and quivering of the leaves as the breeze rustles through them.

8. tremi] The nom. is the fawn.

9. atqui] A very favourite word of Horace in beginning a stanza, and expressing a strong objection or remonstrance.

tigris aspera] 'enraged tigress.'

10. frangere] A natural inf. after persequor, which expresses wish or desire.

11. matrem...] 'To cling to your mother, already of age for a husband.'

ODE XXIV.

Probably addressed to Virgil by Horace on the unexpected death of their common friend Quinctilius Varus. Virgil's grief seems to have been excessive. Horace's consolations partake of the nature of those commonplaces referred to by Tennyson, In Memoriam, canto 6, but they are expressed in language of singular beauty.

Of Quinctilius (probably Quinctilius Varus, cf. 18. 1) our chief knowledge is that he died in B.C. 24, and was a native of Cremona, but his name is, like a fly in amber, enshrined in this Ode for immortality.

1. desiderio...] In its strict sense, 'regret for loss.'

pudor] 'shame, moderation,' almost equivalent to 'modus.' V. note on line 6.

2. cari capitis] 'so dear a life.' The Gk. use of κάρα in such phrases as ὦ φίλον κάρα is similar.

3. Melpomene] Usually the muse of tragedy, here of dirges.

5. ergo] admirationis cum maerore conjunctae exclamatio, Orelli.

'And so the sleep that knows no waking lies heavy on Quinctilius!'

For ergo cf. Virg. Ecl. 1. 47, Fortunate senex, ergo tua rura manebunt; and for perpetuus see note on 7. 6.

For perpetuus asper, of the unbroken sleep of death, cf. Cat. 5. 6, *solus occidere et redire possunt:

nobis quum acmel occidit brevis lux, nox est perpetua una dormienda.*

I cordially agree with those who wish that Horace had omitted the first stanza, with its weak and affected invocation of the muse, and begun with this bold, vigorous, and effective fifth line, which would have been all the more effective if placed at the beginning of the Ode.

6. Pudor] Albæ. The personification of that noble shame which makes men sensitively shrink from all that could raise a blush upon the cheeks of modesty.

6. 7. Iustitiae soror, Fides] Wickham well remarks, 'in calling Good-Faith the sister of Justice, Horace implies that the two go together, and therefore that both were present in Quinctilius.'

7. incorruppta] 'incorruptible.' Adjectives formed from the passive participle are frequently used in the same sense as the more awkward ones ending in -bilis.

So Virg. G. 3. 5, illaudatus = detestable. Livy, 2. 1, inviolatum templum = an inviolable temple. invictus is more often = invincible, than unvanquished.

8. quando ullum inveniet parum] 'When shall (she) ever find a peer?' Cf. Milton's Lycidas 8,

'For Lycidas is dead, dead ere his prime,
Young Lycidas, and hath not left his peer.'

inveniet] Notice the singular after several subjects: the idiom is a favourite one with Horace. Cf. 2. 38, and 3. 3.

11. tu frustra...] 'Devout to no purpose thou claim'st from the gods Quinctilius, entrusted to them on no such terms,' i.e. you have frequently prayed the gods to keep Quinctilius, but you did not mean that they should thus keep him wholly and for ever.

For creditum cf. 3. 5.

13—15. quod si.....non] 'And yet if you were to rule a lyre which even the trees obey more persuasively than Thracian Orpheus, the life-blood would not revisit the shadowy form.'

Wickham with the MSS. gives quid si.....num... = 'what think you, if you were to..... would the life-blood.....?' This seems weaker and less forcible than the downright quodsi and the emphatic and direct non.

16. virga] See note on 10. 18.

17. non lenis...] 'Not easily persuaded to open the barriers of fate,' cf. Prop. 4. 11. 2, Panditur ad nullas janua nigra preces. The gate of death only opens to admit, never to give egress.

18. nigro compulerit gregi] 'Has folded with the children of darkness.'

20. quidquid...] 'Whatever the laws of heaven forbid us to amend.' jus = human law, fas = divine law. Therefore est nefas = heaven forbids.

ODE XXV.

A coarsely expressed Ode addressed to Lydia, who Horace says will soon be an old woman without the charms, but retaining the passions of her youth, and destined to meet with the same haughty contempt she now employs towards her lovers. It has no merit, and may be omitted with advantage.

3, 4. amat limen] 'keeps close to the threshold.' Cf. Virg. Aen. 5. 163, litus ama = 'keep close to, or hug the coast.'

7. me...] 'Though I your lover am tortured through the long nights, my Lydia, do you sleep?'

9. invicem...] 'In your turn you shall bewail the haughtiness of men a despised hag in a deserted alley.'

11, 12. sub interlunia] 'towards the new moon.' It has always been an article of popular belief that changes of the moon are accompanied by changes of the weather.

15. iecur ulcerosum] 'your diseased heart.'

17. laeta quod...] 'Because joyous youth revels rather in green ivy and dusky myrtle, (but or and) dedicates withered leaves to winter's friend the Hebrus:' i.e. because young girls are preferred to old women, as fresh foliage is to faded. virente and pulla describe the foliage of the ivy and myrtle when fresh and unfaded. For the metaphor cf. our phrase the 'sore and yellow leaf,' and Aesch. Ag. 79, τὸ δ' ἐνέργημα πολλὰ δὲ οὐκ ἀνταρραπόμεναι. dedisti Illeto is a stately phrase used in scorn or satire for 'to fling away,' cf. next Ode, l. 2.

Notice what Prof. Mayor calls 'the co-ordination of contrasted clauses' in gaudent and dedisti: in English we should insert 'but,' the Romans however love to set the contrasted clauses side by side without any adversative particle. The Greeks would use παρ and καί.

ODE XXVI.

'I am the friend of the muses, and therefore will throw sorrow and anxiety to the winds, utterly untroubled by the 'Eastern question.' Help me rather, O Muse, to weave a chaplet of verse for Lamia, for he is worthy.'

Lamia is also mentioned 36. 7; he is generally supposed to be L. Aelius Lamia, who was praefectus urbi A.D. 82, and must have been very young when Horace wrote: from the very slight and unimportant nature of the Ode it is possible he was so.

The date is approximately determined by the political allusion. Wickham in his introduction says: 'Phraates IV. to whom Orodes I. had resigned his throne in A.C. 38, after some years of tyranny, provoked his subjects to the point of rebellion. He was expelled, and Tiridates, another member of the Arsacid house, was put on the throne in his place. After a short time Phraates was restored (Justinus adds by the intervention of the Scythians), and Tiridates fled to seek the protection of Augustus,' cf. Odes 2. 2. 17, and 3. 8. 19. A.C. 30 is the probable date of this event.

2, 3. tradam ventis portare] 'I will give to the winds to carry.' The infinitive seems epexegetic or complementary, further defining the phrase tradam ventis. The gerundive construction would be found in prose: cf. Virg. Aen. 1. 819, dederatque comam diffundere ventis. From 2. 8 and 12. 3 we see how fond Horace is of peculiar uses of the infinitive.

3. quis sub Arcto...] Notice that sub Arcto does not go with quis (dat. plural) or metuatur, but with rex gelidae orae.

Translate: 'supremely indifferent by whom the king of the cold realm that lies beneath Arctos is feared, what terrifies Tiridates.'

The second clause explains the first: Tiridates feared the Scythian monarch who was assisting Phraates.

6. integris] The haunts of the Muses are unpolluted by mortal presence: the poet alone may approach them. Cf. Lucr. 1. 926, jurat integros accedere fontes.

7, 8. necte flores, necte] See note on 16. 3.

9. Pimplea] From Pimple, a town or fountain in Pieria.

9, 10. mei honores] 'The honours (of song) which I can confer.'

10. fidibus novis] 'strings before unheard.' Because Horace was the first to write lyrical poetry in Latin, cf. Od. 3. 30, 13:

princeps Aeolium carmen ad Italos deduxisse modos.

11. Lesbio] Lesbos the native island of Alcaeus and Sappho.
plectro] A Greek word, πλήκτρον—the striking thing, 'quill.'

ODE XXVII.

A playful sketch of an imaginary scene at a wine-party. 'Come, my comrades, no quarrelling at table: that is barbarous. Keep your places and do not shout so. What! would you have me drink more? Well, I will, if Megilla's brother will give as a toast the name of his sweetheart. Are you hesitating? Surely you need not be ashamed: no doubt she is a lady. Alas, poor wretch, you deserved a better fate: you have fallen into the clutches of a harpy.'

1. natis...] 'Destined (as it were) by nature for purposes of pleasure.'

2. Thracum] gen. plural. For the drinking habits of the Thracians cf. 36. 14 and 18. 8. One of the metopes of the Parthenon contains a representation of a Centaur using a large diota as a weapon of offence. It is given in Smith's Class. Dict. as an illustration to the word Centaur. The manner of Mr Bardell's decease is strictly classical.

tolite] 'away with.'

3. verecundum] 'who loves moderation.' Cf. modici Liberi, 12. 7. It may also refer to the fresh, blushing face of the youthful divinity.

4. prohibete] 'keep apart from.'

5. lucernis] The feast therefore was intended to be kept up late. Cf. Od. 2. 8. 14, vigiles lucernas perfer in lucem.

acinaces] A Persian word for a short, straight sword, or dirk. The Persians seem to have worn these even at banquets: at Rome it was illegal to wear a weapon at all within the city.

6. immane quantum discrepat] 'Is utterly at variance with.' For immane quantum cf. βαρύτερον λέω, δύσχερον λέω. The phrase is strictly a sentence—'it is enormous how much,' but is used as equivalent to a simple adverb, 'enormously.'

It is used by Tacitus, mirum quantum by Livy, nimium quantum by Cicero.

laptum] as violating the respect due to the god Bacchus.

8. cubito presso] At meals the Romans reclined upon couches, resting on the left elbow, which sank deep (presso) into the cushions.

9. voltis] An imaginary question supposed to be addressed to the company, who are loudly clamouring that he should drink his share (partem).

severi] 'strong to the taste,' 'potent.'

10, 11. Opuntia Megilla] A purely fictitious name. The town of Opus was the capital of the Opuntian Locrians. Horace insists that he will only drink if a toast is given: it was customary to drink a lady's health in as many glasses (cyathi, ladies) as there were letters in the name. Cf. Martial, l. 71,

Lævia sex cyathis, septem Justina bibatur, Quinque Lycas, Lyde quattuor, Ida tribus.

11. quo beatus...] 'What is the wound, what the shaft of which he is the happy victim?'

beatus goes with both pereat and volnere: notice the oxymoron in beatus volnere, and the double meaning of perire, to perish and to be in love, to be dying of love for. Vulnus applied to love is extremely common, cf. Lucr. 1. 35, aeterno devictus vulnere amoris.

13. cessat voluntas?] 'Are you unwilling and reluctant?' Horace suddenly turns to the frater Megillae.

14. quæ te cunque...] 'Whatever Queen of Beauty enslaves you, she' The whole is of course sarcastic: it is hinted that he is in love with a slave, cf. Od. 2. 4. 1, ingenuo therefore is emphatic, 'it is no low-born love that leads you wrong.'

18. ah miser...] He is supposed to have whispered the name, and Horace hearing it exclaims Ah miser in a tone of affected compassion.

19. laborabas] Wickham well compares the use of the Greek imperfect with ἄρα, used when a person finds out that what he had suspected all along to be the case is really so. 'How terrible a Charybdis was causing your struggles;' I always thought some monster had got hold of you and now I find it is so.

21. Thessalis] Thessalian wizards were celebrated.

23. vix illigatum...] 'Hardly will Pegasus disentangle you from the evils of this chimaera.'

The chimaera is described Hom. Il. 6. 181, πρόσθε λέων, δπιθεν δὲ δράκων, μέσση δὲ χίμαιρα.

Here the word is put for any man-destroying monster, from which even more than human aid such as that of Bellerophon on Pegasus cannot afford deliverance.

ODE XXVIII.

A most difficult Ode. It is a dramatic fragment the clue to which is wanting, because we have no exact knowledge (1) of the scene Horace had in his mind's eye, (2) whether it is a monologue or a dialogue, (3) if it is a dialogue, who are the speakers and where one speech ends and the other begins. Under these circumstances every commentator has his own opinion and numerous reasons for dissenting from the opinion of every one else, and this disagreement will continue, and Horace is to blame for it. The Ode is distinctly faulty: an ode to which no two people attach the same meaning is self-condemned. It is needless to say that its defects have made it extremely well known, and it is a great favourite with examiners.

I have judged best to append (1) a close literal translation, (2) an explanation of allusions, &c. (3) a short statement of the chief theories about the ode.

'Thee, Archytas, who didst measure the sea and earth and innumerable sand the petty gift of a little dust by the Mantine shore confines, nor does it aught avail thee to have attempted the dwellings of the sky, and in thought to have sped through the vault of heaven, since thou wert to die after all. Perished also has the sire of Pelops though he feasted with the gods, and Tithonus translated to the sky, and Minos though admitted to the secret councils of Jupiter, and Tartarus yonder the son of Panthous once more consigned to Orcus, although by taking down his child (and so) bearing witness to his life at Troy he had (proved that he had) yielded nothing but sinews and skin to gloomy death, in thy judgment no mean expounder of nature and of truth. But all one night awaits, all must once tread the path of death. Some the Furies present as a spectacle to fierce-eyed Mars, sailors (on the other hand) the grimly sea destroys. Old and young flock together to the grave: cruel Proserpine avoids no head. Me too the north wind, raging comrade of the setting Orion, o'erwhelmed with the Illyrian waves. But thou, O sailor, do not grudgingly refuse to bestow a particle of shifting sand on my bones and unburied head: so, whatever Eurus shall threaten against the Italian waves, may the woods of Venusium be lashed and thou be safe, and may rich gain, from whence it may, stream down on thee from favouring Jupiter and Neptune, guardian of sacred Tarentum. Do you deem it a light thing to commit a crime which will hereafter bring injury upon your innocent children? Nay, haply even on thyself awaiteth the debt of justice and haughty retribution: I will not be left with my curses unavenged, and thee no expiatory sacrifices shall free. However hurried thou art, 'tis but a brief delay: cast but three handfuls of earth and then thou mayest hasten on thy journey.'

2. Archytas] A distinguished mathematician (mensorem maris...) of Tarentum: lived about B.C. 400. He was of the Pythagorean school of philosophy, cf. lines 10—12. Some infer from this Ode that he was drowned and unburied, others that his tomb was a noted spot on the Matine coast, see note on munera.

3. pulveris...] There is an obvious contrast between his boundless genius and narrow tomb. Cf. Shakespeare, Henry IV. Part 1, Act 5, Sc. 4,

‘When that this body did contain a spirit,
A kingdom for it was too small a bound;
But now two paces of the vilest earth
Is room enough.’

Matinum] Probably the shore at the foot of Mt Garganus.

4. munera] is technically used of the due and dutiful bestowal of burial upon a corpse, and seems to make the fact that Archytas is spoken of as buried certain. Those who make Archytas the speaker in line 36, where he asks for burial, are compelled to translate here ‘the gift of a little dust,’ as though it meant ‘the want of the gift of . . .,’ and cohibent as=keep you here on the coast, it being impossible for you to enter Elysium until you receive the ‘three handfuls’ of earth.

5. aerias...] For this description of Archytas’ soaring genius cf. the brilliant panegyric on Epicurus in Lucr. 1. 72,

ergo vivida vis animi pervicit, et extra processit longe flammantia moenia mundi atque omne immensum peragravit mente animoque . . .

6. morituro] Notice the force this derives from its position.

7—9. Pelopis genitor, Tithonus, Minos] See Class. Dict. and for Tithonus Tennyson’s poem of that name.

10. Panthoiden] See Class. Dict. under ‘Pythagoras.’ Even he, notwithstanding his theory of μετεμψύχωσις or the transmigration of souls, and the fact that he had enjoyed several lives, first as a peacock, then as Euphorbus (=Panthoides) at Troy, then as Homer, then as Pythagoras, and finally as Q. Ennius (cf. Persius, Sat. 6. 10. 11), has finally been compelled to succumb to the great law of mortality. There is something sarcastic in Horace's style here, and some have been induced to think that the whole Ode is intended as a scoff at the philosophical system of Pythagoras.

11. clipeo reflexo] Pythagoras had proved the identity of his soul with that of Euphorbus, by at once selecting the shield of Euphorbus from a quantity of other armour.

12. nervos atque cutem] Contemptuous words to express the mere mortal envelope of the more lasting and transmutating soul.

14. iudice te] Because Archytas was a disciple of Pythagoras. However the Ode is taken, I have little hesitation in saying that any rendering which makes te refer to any one but Archytas is impossible. Since te in line 1 no one else has been mentioned; Archytas was a Pythagorean, and therefore te in line 1 and te here must be identical.

non sordidus] i.e. 'most distinguished,' cf. St Paul's 'no mean city,' Acts xxi. 39.

16. semel] once, and once for all.

17. spectacula] To Mars war is an amusement (cf. 2. 37. ludo satiate longo) and slaughter a spectaculum.

20. caput] Cf. Virg. Aen. 4. 698, nondum illi flaram Proserpina vertice crinem abstulerat, Stygioque caput damnaverat Orco.

Therefore caput does not merely = 'man,' 'life,' but refers to the legend that Proserpine marks out the victims of Death by symbolically cutting a lock from their heads, as was done with sacrificial victims.

fugit] The aoristic use of the perfect, 'Is not wont to avoid any head.'

21. me quoque] Who does 'me' refer to? see theories given at end.

quoque = just as others die, so I also.

deveri Orionis] The setting of Orion early in November was a period always accompanied by storms. So Od. 3. 27. 18, Pronus Orion.

rapidus] From rapio, 'sweeping, raving.'

23. at tu, nauta...] Here of course tu refers to nauta, but that cannot shew that te in line 14 does so too, 9 lines before nauta is mentioned. As to nauta see theories at end.

malignus] 'grudging:' the opposite of benignus, liberal.

25. particulam arenae] The three handfuls of earth, which constituted a legitimate burial and saved the dead soul from wandering on the shores of Styx, cf. Virg. Aen. 6. 325.

sic] See 3. 1. So=on condition that you do this, may...

27. plectantur] (from πλήσσω), cf. delirant reges, plectuntur Achivi, Epist. 1. 2. 14.

28. unde] Orelli takes unde=a quo, i.e. Jove. Others, 'from whatever quarter it can,' i.e. I can do you no service, but may you get gain from wherever it is possible.

31. fraudem] ἄγος, a deed which pollutes, and must be expiated.

32. debita iura] The debt to justice which you will incur and have to discharge.

33. te ipsum] contrasted with natis. The penalty may come not only on them, but on yourself even.

36. ter pulvere] Cf. Soph. Ant. 431, χοαῖσι τρισπόνδοισι τὸν νέκυν στέφει.

One great difficulty with regard to this Ode is the question whether Archytas is to be considered as having been buried or not. Those who hold that he was not make the ode a dialogue, begun by a sailor who finds the corpse, and concluded by Archytas who asks for burial. Of these some assign only lines 1—6 to the sailor: in this case the te of line 14 must refer to the sailor. I have already in the notes urged reasons against this, and it also involves the absurd assumption that Archytas addresses an unknown sailor as a strenuous supporter of the Pythagorean philosophy! Can any assumption be more groundless? Others make Archytas begin to speak at line 17, others at line 21, the latter being much the more natural position for a break. Against all these theories there are these objections, (1) lines 3 and 4 which certainly on the face of them say that Archytas is buried, must not be taken as meaning that, for Archytas says, line 36, that he is not buried. Wickham says the sailor sees the corpse over which the sand has been blown, and assumes that it has been buried, and the sand has been duly placed there as a last dutiful rite (munus) bestowed on the dead, a mistake of the writer which Archytas afterwards corrects. I cannot believe this. (2) What imitation is there of such a dialogue in any Ode of Horace? (Ode 3. 9 is not in point.) (3) What authority is there for the fact that Archytas was drowned? cast ashore on the Matine beach? and calvaried? (4) Assuming that he was, why should Horace write this saturnian Ode about a man he cared nothing about, who had died 400 years before, and, according to accepted theories (see Virg. Aen. 6. 329), would even if unburied have completed his 100 years of wandering on the banks of Styx 800 years before? (5) Is it natural to put the philosophic reflections of the opening lines in the mouth of a wandering sailor?

The simplest explanation seems to be, that there was at any rate a so-called tomb of Archytas on that Matine shore with which Horace from his boyhood would be well acquainted (cf. reference to Venusium l. 26), and that he takes this the dramatic scene of his ode, which is a monologue, the speaker being the spirit of some traveller who had been shipwrecked on the coast near Archytas' tomb and been left unburied. Horace may actually have seen such a case. In this case the argument would run thus, the opening reflections being suggested by the proximity of the tomb. 'Yes, we must all die! Even for you, Archytas, six feet of earth must suffice. So it has been even with the greatest; even your own highly honoured teacher is dead. All end at the same goal, though they reach it by different paths, some in war, others by shipwreck. I too have been drowned: (then suddenly breaking off at the thought of the sad fate of the unburied,) but do thou, O sailor (any sailor who might be passing along the shore, or on the sea close in), kindly perform for me the last offices: they will not long delay you.'

ODE XXIX.

'Are you really, Iccius, intending to join the expedition to Arabia? What can you hope to gain? Surely the world must be upside down when the philosophic Iccius sells his carefully formed library to buy armour.'

Iccius is also referred to Epist. 1. 12 as the steward of Agrippa's Sicilian estates. The expedition referred to is one made by Aelius Gallus into Arabia Felix in B.C. 24. It was unsuccessful, so that non ante devictis and catenas were rather premature.

1, 2. beatis gazis] 'rich treasures.' The word gaza is Persian. Cf. Od. 3. 24. 1, Intactis opulentior thesauris Arabum. Arabia Felix or Sabaea was celebrated for its rare and precious perfumes. Cf. the visit of the Queen of Sheba to Solomon, 1 Kings x. 1.

To the Romans the whole East was the land of untold wealth, a sort of Eldorado such as the Spaniards hoped to find in Mexico and Peru: in both cases the first explorers were dazzled by the vast collections of useless wealth which had been formed by a few despotic potentates, while the inhabitants starved. Cf. Milton, Paradise Lost, 2. 2.

4. regibus] 'Emirs, princes.'

5. nectis catenas] The whole of this stanza is in a tone of playful irony: Horace exaggerates the expectations of Iccius. He speaks of him as forging fetters, and hoping to bring home the captives of his bow and spear in heroic fashion.

quae tibi...] 'What barbarian maid will be your slave when you have slain her betrothed?'

Cf. Judges v. 30, 'Have they not sped? have they not divided the prey: to every man a damsel or two...?'

7. puer...] 'What page from court with perfumed locks will be set to hand your cup?'

For these Eastern cup-bearers cf. Nehemiah ii. 1, and Daniel i. 3. They were usually of noble birth and personal beauty.

For capillis cf. Tennyson's 'long-haired page' in the Lady of Shalott.

9. Sericas] The Seres are the remotest people of the East. Notice how Horace started with Arabia, soon got to Parthia (Medo), and has now made Iccius reach China. Perhaps the exaggeration is intended.

10. quis neget...] 'Who would deny that descending streams can flow backwards up steep mountains...?'

Wickham well suggests that arduis montibus is an ablative absolute on the analogy of adverso flumine &c. It may possibly be the dative.

The phrase is an ordinary one to express that the order of nature is inverted. Cf. Eur. Med. 460, ἀνὰ νερανὲν ἰσχυρὸν χυποῖται νῆαυ, καὶ ἄλλαι καὶ πόρτα πόλιν ἐπὶ φέρουσι, and Cicero, ad Att. 15, 4. 1, merely uses the words ἀνὰ νερανὲν when he wishes to express that all is topsy-turvy.

12. coemptos undique] He was not merely an ordinary student of philosophy, but a keen collector of philosophical works.

14. Panaetii] A celebrated Stoic philosopher, the friend of Scipio and Laelius. Died about 111 B.C.

Socraticam domum] 'the Socratic school,' i.e. the works of the Socratic school. The phrase would include all those philosophers who were influenced by Socrates, and, chief among them, Plato. Socrates never founded a 'school' properly so called; his teaching encouraged the philosophic spirit of enquiry generally, and did not establish definite dogmas; hence among the followers of Socrates are to be found philosophers of the most varied views, the Peripatetics, the Cynics, the Cyrenaics, and others.

15. Hiberis] made of Spanish steel.

ODE XXX.

'Venus, quit thy favourite haunts and visit Glycera who prays thy presence, and bring with thee thy joyous troop of attendants.'

1. Cnidus, in Caria: here was the famous statue of Venus by Praxiteles, of which the Medicean is said to be a copy.

2. sperne] Cf. 19. 9.

3, 4. decoram in aedem] Aedes in the singular usually = 'a temple,' in the plural = 'a house.' It may be that Glycera is supposed to have fitted up a mimic shrine for Venus, and Horace wrote this mimic ode of invocation (ἱκετικὴ κλεῖσις) for the occasion. This view is supported by the thure multo. Orelli seems to think 'house' a safer rendering.

5, 6. solutis zonis] 'with loosened girdles.' Notice Gratiae properentque Nymphae for Gratiae Nymphaeque properent. This license as to the position of que is very commonly used for convenience in the 2nd half of an elegiac verse, e.g. patriam destituuntque domos.

7. parum comis...] 'Youth that without thee (i.e. Love) loses all its charm.'

8. Mercurius] accompanies Venus as the god of speech: silent wooers are rarely successful.

ODE XXXI.

In B.C. 28 Augustus, in memory of the victory of Actium, dedicated a temple to Apollo on the Palatine, and at the same time a library which contained not only the works but the busts of eminent Greek and Roman writers. This latter circumstance naturally caused considerable excitement and emulation in the literary world, and is continually referred to by them. Cf. Epist. 2. 1. 216, 2. 2. 94, 1. 3. 17, and Suet. Aug. 29.

'What shall the poet pray for to his patron god Apollo on this great day? Not for large estates and wealth. Let wealth and luxurious living be for prosperous merchants who think themselves the very favourites of heaven because their ships have made many successful voyages. I am satisfied with simple fare, and ask but for a healthy mind and healthy body, an old age free from dishonour and charmed by poetry.'

1. dedicatum] = 'in his new temple.' The Romans can say not merely dedicare aedem, but dedicare deum; Wickham well says, 'perhaps from the image of the god which was installed in his shrine.' In this case we know that there actually was such an image, a statue by Scopas which Augustus brought from Greece (Plin. 36. 5. 4). Propertius describes it (3. 23. 5), and a copy of it, the 'Apollo Citharoedus,' is in the Vatican, and is represented in Smith's Hist. of Greece, p. 551, 580.

2. novum] Cf. 19. 15, bimi meri. New wine was used in libations.

4. Sardiniae] Both Sardinia and Sicily supplied Rome with corn. Cf. note on l. 10.

segetes feraces] 'Fruitful crops' or 'fruitful corn-lands.' segetes = either the land sown, or the crop.

5. aestuosa] 'sultry.' Cf. 22. 5.

grata Calabriae armenta] grata, as being in good condition, and pleasant to contemplate. Nearly every one has experienced the feeling of pleasure produced by the sight of fine contented cattle in a rich pasture. The cattle in Calabria were driven up to the hills in summer, and down to the valleys in winter.

6. aureum aut ebur Indicum] Gold and ivory are taken as typical of Oriental wealth and luxury generally. So the navy of Tharshish (1 Kings x. 22) brought to Solomon every three years 'gold, and silver, and ivory.'

7. quae Liris...] 'which Liris eats away with his gentle waters, that silent stream.' The beauty of the description of a slowly-flowing river is, in the Latin, incomparable.

9. præmanti] 'prune:' repress the luxuriant growth of.

Calena] The epithet is transferred from the vine to the pruning-knife. The grammatical term for this is 'hypallage.' Calas is in Campania.

10. dives et...] 'And let the wealthy merchant drain from golden goblets the wines acquired in exchange for (reparata) Syrian merchandise.' Cululli are said to be vessels used in sacred rites by the pontiffs and vestal virgins: this word and exiceet (drain to the dregs) are purposely used to bring out the luxury and greed of the merchant-prince.

12. Syria merce] So Od. 8. 29, 60, Tyriae merces. The phrase would include all those products of the East which came through Syria, and especially through the great emporium of Tyre.

13. dis carus ipais] κατ' ἐλπίδας Orelli. The irony is strongly brought out by quippe = 'because forsooth.'

ter et quater] 'Three or four times:' so in Gk. δὲ καὶ τρίς.

15, 16. olivæ, cichorea, malvæ] i.e. the ordinary products of a yeoman's farm.

leves] 'light,' i.e. to the digestion.

17. frui...] 'Mayest thou grant me (for the present), O son of Leto, to enjoy what I have both with sound health, and, I pray, with mind unimpaired, and (in the future) to pass an old age neither....'

This is Orelli's rendering: Horace has two wishes: (1) vigour of mind and body. For this cf. Juv. 10. 356, orandum est ut sit mens sana in corpore sano,

(2) when old age comes that honour which should ever accompany it, and that enjoyment of poetic pursuits which had been the happiness of his life.

Wickham's reading is at, precor. He translates, 'Be thy boon to me, both in full strength to enjoy the good the gods provide me (only I pray thee be a sound mind among them) and to spend an old age neither.....' Unless MS. authority in favour of at is very strong, Orelli's rendering is much preferable.

ODE XXXII.

'I am summoned. If ever, my lyre, in lighter moments I with thy aid have sung anything which may survive, come now inspire me with a Latin song, such as Alcaeus sang of old, the warrior-bard. O thou that art the glory of Phoebus, the delight of Jupiter, the solace of toil, assist me whenever I summon thee.'

1. poscimur] Horace had evidently been asked to write an Ode or Odes on some subject of national interest (Latinum carmen); this Ode is an appeal to his lyre by the memory of their past success in lighter subjects to aid him in this. Whether Augustus or Maecenas made the request, and whether the noble national lyrics at the commencement of Book 3 are the answer, is matter of conjecture. Poscimur seems to imply that those who summoned Horace had the right or claim to do so.

The reading poscimus (followed by a comma and governing quod) is utterly weak, and the reading poscimur is strongly supported by many passages in Ovid, e.g. Poscimur, Aonides, Fasti, 4. 721.

si] This use of a clause beginning with si in apposition is very frequent. Cf. Carm. Sec. 37, Roma si vestrum spat est... date...

1, 2. vacui sub umbra iustinus] Notice how each word brings out the idea of light sportive poetry. sub umbra: grottoes or groves are of course the haunts of poets. iustinus is commonly used of the compositions of playful verse, cf. Od. 4. 9. 9, si quid olim iussit Anacreon.

2. quod et...] Notice that this clause does not refer to Latinum carmen, but to si quid.

3. dic] 'utter:' the instrument is said to speak.

4. barbite] Masculine here as in late Greek. The word has the almost unique privilege of ~~possessing~~ possessing three genders, ἡ βάρβιτος and ὁ βάρβιτος being also found, an instance which shows how illogical it is to apply the masculine and feminine genders to things without life almost as clearly as the fact that the German words for a knife, spoon, and fork are of three different genders.

5. Lesbio primum...] It is implied though not expressed that Horace hopes his ode will equal those of Alcæus. See too 1. 34, note.

modulate] See 1. 25, note.

civi] is emphatic. Alcæus took a most active part in political life. He was driven into exile by the popular party: he fought both against the Athenians, and Pittacus the tyrant of Mitylene.

6. qui ferox...] 'Who, fierce warrior though he was, yet amid the clash of arms or if he had moored his storm-tossed bark on the dank beach . . .'

7. sive] is omitted before inter arma, cf. 6. 19.

reliquo seems to have the force of 'binding so as to hold back:' so too re in retinaculum, 'a mooring-rope.'

9, 10. illi haerentem] 'clinging to her side,' cf. Virg. Aen. 10. 780, haeserat Evandro.

11. nigris oculis nigroque] When the Roman poets repeat a word they are very fond of putting it in such a position that the ictus falls differently on it in the two positions. Nigris of course allows the first syllable to be long or short, but in consequence of this fondness the poets often absolutely alter the quantity of a word when they repeat it. The best instances are Theocr. 6. 19, τὰ μὴ καλὰ καλὰ πέφανται. Lucr. 4. 1259, liquidis et liquida. Hom. Ἄρες Ἄρες. Virg. vālē vālē. And for a similar instance to this one Virg. Aen. 2. 663, natum ante ora patris, patrem . . .

15. cunque] There is no other instance of the use of this word. All the MSS. give it here. It seems to have the same sense as in quandocunque, and to make the notion of time contained in the temporal participle vocanti indefinite. Vocanti cunque = whenever I call. It is however a very remarkable use.

ODE XXXIII.

'Let not the memory of Glycera's cruelty grieve you too much, Tibullus, and cease lamenting that you are outshone by a rival. It is a common case: Lycoris loves Cyrus, Cyrus loves Pholoe, and Pholoe thinks Cyrus detestable. Venus loves in cruel sport to yoke together those who will never make a pair. The very same thing has happened to myself, as to you.'

For the intimacy of Horace and Tibullus (for whom see Class. Dict.) see carefully Epist. 1. 4, Albi, nostrorum sermonum candide iudex, and the panegyric which follows. Tibullus' poetry is full of the plaintive laments referred to in l. 2.

1. plus nimio] Cf. 18. 15. The phrase is put between doleas and memor that it may go partly with both.

2. immitis Glycerae] Notice the play of words: immitis = bitter, and γλυκερά = sweet. Cf. dulce loquens Lalage (λαλεῖν), 22. 24. Such plays on words are especially frequent in tragedy, cf. Ajax 430, αἰαί· τίς ἄν ποτ' ᾤθ' ᾤδ' ἐπάννυμον τοῦμὸν ξυνοίσειν ὄνομα τοῖς ἐμοῖς κακοῖς;

And Shakespeare makes John of Gaunt on his deathbed speak of himself as—

'Old John of Gaunt, and gaunt in being old.'

3. decanates ear] 'Sing to satiety (asking) why her pledge is violated and elegos] ἐλγος = cry alas!

6. insignem tenui fronte] Cf. Epist. 1. 7. 26, nigros angusta fronte capillos, where Horace is speaking of beauty in a man. A small forehead, or at any rate a forehead that appears small owing to the growth of the hair, is no doubt an addition to beauty.

8. tungentur . . .] 'Sooner will roses mate with wolves than Pholoe commit herself with a lover she holds vile.'

9. turpi] does not assert that Cyrus is 'vile,' but that he is so in the opinion of Pholoe.

10. sic visum Veneri] 'Such is the pleasure of Venus.' The phrase indicates that it is a case where it is of no avail arguing or appealing, the matter having been settled by a high and arbitrary power: cf. Or. Met. 1. 366, sic visum superis.

10, 11. impares formas] The predilection of tall men for short women and vice versa is supposed to be an established fact.

Venus delights to yoke together indissolubly (juga aenea—a yoke there is no breaking) those who though thus yoked to each other can never make 'a pair' (for that implies that they are well matched) but must ever remain impares.

13. ipsam me . . .]

'I myself, woo'd by one that was truly a jewel,
In thralldom was held, which I cheerfully bore,
By that common chit, Myrtale, though she was cruel
As waves that indent the Calabrian shore.'

MARTIN.

ODE XXXIV.

'I, who had but little belief in the gods and was the disciple of a philosophic wisdom 'falsely so called,' now am driven to retract, for lately I heard thunder, when the sky was cloudless, thunder such as shakes the universe and is indeed the voice of God, God whose power is visible in all things, who 'bath put down the mighty from their seat and hath exalted the humble and meek."

A very interesting little Ode. Horace was at any rate fairly acquainted with and disposed to favour the philosophy of Epicurus. That philosophy had lately been brilliantly described in almost the grandest effort of Roman poetry, the De Rerum Natura of Lucretius. One of its cardinal points was that either gods did not exist at all or that they lived wholly and entirely apart, a life remote from care (securum agere aevum, Sat. 1. 5. 101),

‘The gods who haunt
The lucid interspace of world and world,
Where never creeps a cloud or moves a wind

* * * * *

Nor sound of human sorrow mounts to mar
Their sacred everlasting calm!’

TENNYSON’S Lucretius.

The Epicureans urged that many things, which the vulgar believed to declare the presence of God, were but the results of the ordinary action of independent natural forces. Among many other arguments one of the most popular was: if thunder be the voice of God, why does it never thunder except when there are clouds about and it can therefore be explained on natural grounds? Cf. Arist. Nubes 370—430 and also Lucr. Book 6, where the whole subject is discussed and the actual question put (6. 400),

denique cur nunquam caelo jacet undique puro Juppiter in terras fulmen sonitusque profudit?

Horace had however actually heard thunder caelo puro: he cannot understand or account for it: it flashes across him that perhaps

‘There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio,
Than are dreamt of in your philosophy.’

1. cultor] ‘worshipper.’

2. insanientis sapientiae] A good instance of ‘oxymoron’: sapientia is the regular word for wisdom, meaning thereby philosophy; the philosophy here is of course that of Epicurus.

For other instances of oxymoron cf. Lucan 1. 66, concordia discors, Soph. Ajax 665, ἐχθρὸν ἄλυσσάμενον, and Timothy 1.

'His honour rooted in dishonour stood,
And faith unfaithful kept his formerly true,'

It is a rhetorical figure of great frequency.

2. 2. dum erro] = 'while I strayed.' Dum takes the pres. ind. even with reference to past time.

3. consultus] Cf. the common phrase juris consultus; it indicates one who is an 'adviser' or 'professor.'

5. Disepiter] Cf. note on l. 25. The word is archaic, and its employment an affectation.

6. nubila] is emphatic as opposed to per purum. 'Who usually cleaves the clouds with flashing flame lately through a cloudless sky . . .'

10. Taenari] 'Cape Matapan' in Laconia. Close to was the entrance to the under world. Cf. Virg. G. 4. 407, Taenarias etiam fauces, alta ostia Ditis.

11. Atlantensque finis] 'Atlas the boundary of the world,' cf. Eur. Hipp. 2, ῥέπουρος = 'Arcturion'. Beyond the Straits of Gibraltar was almost an unknown region to the ancients.

12. valet ima...] See Introduction to Ode. Orelli also compares Job v. 11. Construe 'He hath power to change the lowliest with the loftiest, and God maketh the great man weak, bringing to light things hidden in gloom.'

14. apicem] Technically this was a conical cap worn by the flamines. It is used however to express anything worn as a sign of imperial power, as equivalent to tiara or diadema. Cf. Od. 3. 21. 30, regum apices. The Romans had no word for 'a crown' = a royal crown, because having abolished kings for ever they abolished also the symbols of their power.

15. stridore] i.e. alarum. Fortune is represented as winged and swooping down unexpectedly and snatching from one what she carries to another.

16. sustulit] The aoristic use, cf. 23. 20.

ODE XXXV.

'O Queen of Antium, thou all-powerful goddess Fortune, thee the poor man supplicates and the sailor, thee the nations worship, and the mothers of princes and even kings in all their glory fearful lest thou shouldest overthrow their prosperity. Before thee marches Destiny with all the symbols of her immutable power: with thee are Hope and Good Faith, faithful, even when thou hast ceased to smile and the vulgar herd of flatterers has deserted the unfortunate. O do thou guard the Emperor in his attack on Britain and our armies in the East: may these legitimate wars expiate our unholy civil contentions, may Roman swords no longer be whetted but against a foreign foe.'

The Fortune of this Ode is not a fickle and capricious goddess; not as Od. 3. 29. 49,

Fortuna saevo laeta negotio et ludum insolentem ludere pertinax,

but symbolizes that unknown mysterious power which regulates at will the changeful phases of human life. At line 29 this general conception is specialized and the prayer is addressed to that Fortuna populi Romani of whose power the Romans were strongly reminded whenever they recalled the history of the growth of their world-wide empire.

Wickham aptly quotes and happily renders Plutarch's description of this Fortune (de Fortuna Romanorum, c. 4), 'even as Aphrodite, when she crossed the Eurotas, laid aside her mirror and her ornaments and her cestus, and took spear and shield to adorn herself for Lycurgus' eyes, so when, after her sojourning with Persians and Assyrians, with Macedonians and Carthaginians, she (Τύχη) approached the Palatine and crossed the Tiber, she laid aside her wings and took off her sandals and left behind her her ball, the symbol of fickleness and change.'

1. gratum] sc. tibi, as 30. 2, dilectam Cypron.

Antium] On the coast, capital of the Volsci. There were two statues of Fortune there, which were consulted by a method of drawing lots (per sortes). So too at Praeneste: cf. Stat. Silv. 1. 3. 60, Praenestinae sortes.

2. praesens] 'ready and able.' praesens implies not merely 'presence,' but also to be present with the wish and ability to assist.

3. mortale corpus] 'frail mortal.' The phrase ~~is~~ used instead of 'men,' to express the weakness and frailty of humanity.

5. ambit] Literally, 'to go round canvassing' (hence ambitio), then 'to court,' 'worship.'

6. dominam aequoris] 'as mistress of the ocean.'

7, 8. Rhynus, Carpathium] Pictorial. Carpathium pelagus, between Rhodes and Crete.

7. laceat] 'challenges,' 'braves.' The word expresses the hardness and effrontery of the sailor. Cf. Ov. Met. 1. 134, Fluctibus ignotis insultare carinae, and Odes 1. 3. 21—25.

11. regumque matres] Anxious for their sons who had gone to battle. Cf. the lament of Atossa the mother of Xerxes in the Persae of Aeschylus, and the anxiety of the mother of Sisera, Judges v. 28, 'The mother of Sisera looked out at a window, and cried through the lattice, Why is his chariot so long in coming? why tarry the wheels of his chariots?'

12. purpurei] Not an idle epithet. It implies that kings even in their royal apparel fear Fortune.

Purple is of course the distinguishing mark of kingly rank, cf. Virg. G. 2. 495, purpura regum, and the peculiar epithet πορφύρεος applied to children born to reigning emperors of the Byzantine court. Purple-striped togas were the sign of rank at Rome during the republic. Subsequently garments wholly of purple (holocerae) were reserved to the Emperor alone. For the whole history of purple see Mayor's most learned note on Juv. 1. 27, ed. 2.

13. iniurioso...] 'Lest with aggressive foot thou shouldst overthrow the standing pillar of the State, lest the thronging populace should rouse even the hesitating to arms, to arms, and break their sceptre.'

iniurioso] ὀβριονικῶς. The word combines the ideas of insult and injury: the pede increases the idea of insult. columna is merely used as an emblem of stability and dignity.

14. neu...] This second clause merely repeats with fresh particulars the idea of the first.

15. cessantes] = those at first doubtful whether to join the sedition.

ad arma] is the actual cry raised, and its repetition by the poet is a graphic representation of its repetition by the mob.

17. te semper anteit...] Wickham gives a good summary of Lessing's criticism on this passage. It is to the effect that the poet has trespassed on the painter's art; a painter portraying Destiny would be compelled to shew who she was by symbols, a poet has other and better ways. Some imagine that Horace was thinking of some actually existing picture or representation, and indeed an ancient Etruscan mirror from Perugia exists representing Athropa (= Atropos, or Destiny) in the act of fixing a nail with a hammer, symbolizing an immutably fixed decision.

anteit] is scanned as a dissyllable, cf. antehac, 37. 5.

18. clavos trabales] Nails such as are placed in beams. For the symbolical use cf. Cic. Verr. 5. 21, ut hoc beneficium, quemadmodum dicitur, clavo trabali figeret.

19, 20. severus uncus.....] 'stubborn clamp and molten lead,' i.e. materials for building with greatest fixity. The method of uniting stones by means of iron bars fastened in with lead is well known.

21, 22. albo panno] Typical of guileless innocence.

22. nec comitem abnegat] sc. se, 'nor refuses her companionship.' This stanza is without doubt awkwardly expressed. Horace says that 'Faith accompanies Fortune whenever in changed attire (indicative of misfortune) she in hostile mood quits a (formerly) powerful mansion.' Now the phrase 'to follow, or accompany Fortune' always means to vary or change in conduct according as Fortune changes: in fact we find in Ov. Pont. 2. 3. 7 the sarcastic remark, et cum Fortuna statque caditque Fides, and we say in English, 'friends and fortune fly together;' but Horace means the exact opposite, he means that fides does not vary in calamity. What he intends to say is, 'when a man is unfortunate he has to quit his great mansion taking his ill fortune with him, but Faith accompanies his ill-fortune and remains with him notwithstanding his ill-fortune!' but he has said it very clumsily and awkwardly.

26. disfugiant] 'When racks are drained to the lees (friends scatter, see translators) to bear their share of the yoke.' The Greek proverb, ἐν χερσὶ τῷ πόδα, excellently illustrates the passage.

29. Iturum] Augustus never visited Britain, but proposed to do so in 34 B.C. and 27 B.C. The latter is probably the date of this ode.

29, 30. ultimos Britannos] So Virg. Ecl. 1. 67, penitus toto divisos orbe Britannos, and Tacitus' singular phrase, Agri. 30, Britannos terrarum ac libertatis extremos. The poets never rarely to mention Britain except as a type of remotest barbarism.

30, 31. recens examen] 'recently levied troops.' examen = exagmen = exagmen (ἐξαγμένον), a form led out: a swarm of bees: the tongue of a balance (quod ardet, quoniam the exact weight). For the political reference, see Ode 29.

32. Oceano rubro] Erythracum mare, the Indian Ocean, including the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf.

33, 34. cicatricum fratrumque] Hemiladya (τὸ δὲ δόρυ), 'the scars inflicted by brethren on brethren.'

For the civil wars see 2. 21, note.

34, 35. dura aetas] 'an age of iron.'

35. nefasti] This word is usually applied to days when no legal business was done, cf. Or. Fasti 1. 47, which were so called because the praetor did not utter (ne-fatur) the three words do, dico, addico, which indicated that the courts were sitting. Here it is put for nefandus = unutterable, impious. Both words have the same derivation, but their meanings got differentiated (cf. queen, quean).

38. o utinam...] 'O mayest thou on a new anvil reforge our blunted swords (for use) against the Massagetae and Arabians.'

39. retusum] blunted, i.e. in civil strife. Be careful not to take retusum in together, but dis-fugas in.

ODE XXXVI.

An Ode written in honour of the return of Plotius Numida from Spain. There shall be sacrifices and festivity in honour of the event: Damalis shall attend the feast, the cynosure of every eye, but Damalis will wholly devote herself to Numida the hero of the hour.

Of Plotius Numida nothing is known: he probably returned with Augustus after his expedition against the Cantabri, B.C. 25.

1. fidibus] Referring to the fidicenes or harpers, who with tibicenes were employed in religious ceremonies.

2. debito] 'due,' the calf had been vowed in case of Numida's safe return: now the vow had to be discharged; Horace was roti reus. Cf. Od. 2. 7. 17, obligatam redde Jovi dapem.

4. Hesperia] = Spain; but Od. 3. 6. 8, Hesperia = Italy, which may be called Hesperia as compared with Greece or the East.

5. caris multa...] 'Shares many a kiss with his dear comrades, but for none has a larger share than....'

The modes of expressing the emotions vary: Englishmen do not kiss one another, but the practice is common still among many nations.

8. actae non alio...] 'of boyhood passed with none other for his leader.' puertiae is by syncope for pueritiae, cf. surpuerat and lamna.

9. mutataeque simul togae] Boys about the age of 14 or 15 ceased to wear the toga praetexta and assumed the toga virilis. It was done at the Liberalia in March; friends and relatives celebrated the event together. For Lamia, see Ode 16.

10. Cressa nota] a mark of white chalk. It is said to have been a Thracian custom to count their happy days with white, their unhappy with black pebbles, but the symbolism of 'black and white' for 'bad and good' is too natural to need any special origin.

Cressa] = 'Cretan.' From Crete or the neighbouring island of Cimolus chalk came. For the phrase cf. Catull. 107. 6, O lucem candidiore nota. Sat. 2. 3, 246, creta an carbone notandi.

12. morem in Sallum] For the Salli, the leaping or dancing priests of Mars (a salsu nomina ducta, Ov. Fast. 3. 28), who had charge of the Anellia, see Diet. of Ant. They formed a close guild, and, like many other guilds, ended by being principally celebrated for their feasts (see next Ode, l. 8). The 'Luperci' formed another guild of a very similar character.

13. neq. multi...] 'Nor let Damalis the strong drinker surpass Bacchus in the Thracian amystia.'

multi meri] is the descriptive genitive used in a somewhat curious manner. Cf. Cic. ad Fam. 9. 26, hospes non multi cibi sed multi joci, and Odes 3. 9. 7, multi Lydia nominis.

For Thracia cf. 18. 9, and 27. 2.

14. amystia (from a and μυσ, not to close the lips), 'a drinking without taking breath.' Cf. Eur. Cycl. 417:

ἰδὲ γὰρ τορὰς τ' ἀμυστὴν ἔλκεται.

For a similar convivial practice, cf. the laws of 'sconcing' known to most Oxford men. In Germany I have frequently seen a game played which consists in drinking flagons of beer at a breath; the winner is he who has his empty flagon down on the table soonest.

15, 16. rosae, aptum, liliū] materials for garlands.

17. omnes in...] 'All on Damalis will fix their lingering glances, but Damalis will not be separated from her new love, clinging closer than the wanton ivy.'

20. Notice ambitiosus used in its primary sense = qui ambit.

For the metaphor cf. Catullus' exquisite lines, 61. 33,

*mentem amore revinciens
ut tenax hedera huc et huc

ODE XXXVII.

An Ode written on the arrival at Rome of the news of Cleopatra's death, which was brought in the autumn of B.C. 30 by M. Tullius Cicero, the son of the orator. No mention is made of the death of M. Antonius, because the destruction of a Roman citizen was no ground for exultation; so in his triumph on his return to Rome all allusion to the defeat and death of Antony was carefully avoided by Augustus.

The Ode is probably one of Horace's earliest: in his later odes he would not admit such lines as 5 and 14.

For the bitter Roman hatred of Cleopatra see Propertius 4. 11 (Paley's edition); for the battle of Actium Propertius 5. 6, and Hor. Ep. 9, and Virg. Aen. 8. 675. These passages are all of the utmost interest but are too long to quote.

1. nunc est bibendum...] This commencement is copied from Alcaeus, νῦν χρὴ μεθύσθην καὶ τινα πρὸς βίαν

Πίνην ἐπειδὴ κάτθανε Μῦρσιλος.

2. pulsanda tellus] So of joyous dancing, Od. 3. 18. 15, Gaudet invisam pepulisse fossor ter pede terram.

Sallaribus] See last ode. For the luxury of priestly feasts cf. too Od. 2. 14. 28, mero Pontificum potiore coenis.

3. pulvinar] See Dict. of Ant.

4. tempus erat] Orelli says, factum illud jamdudum oportebat atque etiam nunc oportet, i.e. 'it was long since time,' 'how-ever soon we begin it cannot be too early.' He compares Arist. Eccl. 877, τί ποθ' ἄνδρες οὐχ ἤκουσιν; ὦρα δ' ἦν πάλαι.

Wickham says: 'we were right to wait: this was the time.'

Either explanation will satisfy tempus erat, but to my mind Horace's expression seems awkward. He does not merely say tempus erat, which would be simple, but nunc...tempus erat, and that immediately after writing in an exactly similar sense nunc est bibendum.

5. depromere] Some say that the de indicates 'down,' the apotheca or store-room for the wine being in the upper part of the house, where the wine mellowed more quickly, but de-promere is generally used merely in the sense of to bring forth or out.

5, 6. Caecubum arvens] The wine is choice and old.

6. Capitolio] The very sign and pledge of Rome's greatness, cf. Od. 3. 2. 42, Stet Capitolium fulgens. Orsini quotes Lucan 10. 62, Terruit illa ruo, et fas, Capitolia elatro.

6. 7. Capitolio regina] Notice the juxtaposition of these words (incideret causa). The Romans abhorred the word ruo, how much more regina, and in connection with their national temple!

7. dementes ruinas] 'The ruin she hoped for in her infatuation.'

9. contaminato...] 'With her filthy herd of men hideous with disease, mad enough to hope for anything and intoxicated with good fortune.'

The reference is to her Oriental concubine slaves: they are called riti in bitter irony. Impotens is the Gk. ἀπαρτς which is the opposite of ἐξαρτς = one who has command over himself. The word is well applied to an Eastern sovereign in whom the possession of uncontrolled power had raised uncontrollable and impossible desires.

13. vix una sospes...] For the battle of Actium see any history.

Cleopatra's fleet really got away: that of Antony consisting of 300 vessels was almost wholly destroyed.

14. lymphatam] 'delirious,' 'distracted.' This curious word is said to be equivalent to νυμφοληρτος = nymphe-causht, lymphe and nympha being identical, and the nymphs having the power of causing madness.

15. veros] Opposed to the imaginary fears of delirium.

17. adurgens] Octavian (afterwards Augustus) did not follow Cleopatra until the next year, but the poet for dramatic effect represents the whole series of actions as absolutely continuous.

20. Haemonia = Thessaly, so called from Haemon, father of Thessalus.

21. fatale monstrum] Horace speaks of Cleopatra as not human, but a hideous and portentous creature sent by destiny (fatale) to cause horror and alarm.

Notice monstrum quae. The construction is called πρὸς τὸ σημαϊνόμενον. The writer thinks rather of the sense than the grammar: it is a very natural and common license.

quae generosius] 'Who anxious for a nobler end neither shuddered at the sword with womanly fear' Cf. Shakespeare, Ant. and Cleopatra, Act 5, sc. 2,

'Give me my robe, put on my crown: I have Immortal longings in me, &c. . . .'

and Tennyson, Dream of Fair Women,

'I died a Queen.'

23, 24. latentes oras] Cleopatra had at one time the idea of transporting her fleet into the Red Sea, and flying to some distant shore.

24. reparavit] A very difficult word. Its simplest translation is 'to acquire (parare) in the place of (re),' i.e. she did not endeavour to acquire with her fleet some hidden distant realm in place of Egypt which she had lost.' Beware of the absurd translation 'repaired to.'

27. ut atrum...] 'That she might deeply drink (combibo) in her body the fatal poison, more fiercely proud when (once) she had resolved to die, grudging, be sure, the fierce Liburnians, the being conducted, a queen no longer, in insulting triumph, woman though she was, not lowly enough for that.'

This fine stanza cannot be translated: the series of nominatives in apposition each with special force in its special place cannot be rendered into English without paraphrasing and sacrificing the forcible brevity of the Latin.

28. venenum] i.e. of the asp.

30. Liburnis] The Liburni in their light coasting vessels were of the greatest service at Actium. Cf. Epod. 1. 1.

scilicet] (scire-licet), 'of course,' 'no doubt.' Her purpose was so clearly shewn that we may assume that none would dare to question it.

31, 32. superbo triumpho] She is said frequently to have repeated to Octavian 'οὐ θριαμβεύσομαι.'

ODE XXXVIII.

The time is autumn (l. 4); the scene represents Horace alone about to sup, attended by a single slave, whom he bids make the simplest preparations, for they will suffice.

1. Pernicee apparatus] 'Pernian pomp' or 'luxury.'

2. phillyra] φάληρα, the lime tree. Its inner bark was used to sew flowers on for chaplets, which were thence called euthyræ. Cf. Or. Fast. 5. 335.

Tempora cutilibus cinguntur tota corona.

3. mitte sectari] 'Give up anxiously seeking in what spot lingers the last rose of summer.'

mitte] = omitte.

5. nihil] is peculiar; the negative part goes in sense with curo, and the noun part is the acc. after allabores. Translate, 'I care not that you anxiously endeavour to add anything to simple myrtle.'

For curo allabores cf. the common construction curo facias.

5, 6. allabores sedulus] Notice that these words go together.

7. arta] 'close-leaved,' 'thick.'

CLASSICS.

ELEMENTARY CLASSICS.

18mo, Eighteenpence each.

THIS SERIES FALLS INTO TWO CLASSES—

(1) First Reading Books for Beginners, provided not only with Introductions and Notes, but with Vocabularies, and in some cases with Exercises based upon the Text.

(2) Stepping-stones to the study of particular authors, intended for more advanced students who are beginning to read such authors as Terence, Plato, the Attic Dramatists, and the harder parts of Cicero, Horace, Virgil, and Thucydides.

These are provided with Introductions and Notes, but no Vocabulary. The Publishers have been led to provide the more strictly Elementary Books with Vocabularies by the representations of many teachers, who hold that beginners do not understand the use of a Dictionary, and of others who, in the case of middle-class schools where the cost of books is a serious consideration, advocate the vocabulary system on grounds of economy. It is hoped that the two parts of the Series, fitting into one another, may together fulfil all the requirements of Elementary and Preparatory Schools, and the Lower Forms of Public Schools.

The following Elementary Books, with Introductions, Notes, and Vocabularies, and in some cases with Exercises, are either ready or in preparation:—

A NEW HISTORY OF ENGLISH LITERATURE IN FOUR VOLUMES.

Crown 8vo.

ELIZABETHAN LITERATURE.

By GEORGE SAINTSBURY. In the Press.

This is the first instalment of a History of English Literature divided into four main periods, each of which is entrusted to a writer who has made that period his special study. The idea of the work was due in the first instance to the late Mr. J. R. Green, whose view was that the field of English literature was too vast to be adequately covered by any single writer. Each writer will work independently, but the plan will, as far as possible, be uniform throughout. The chief writers of each period will be illustrated by ample specimens. The third and fourth volumes, which have been undertaken respectively by Mr. Edmund Gosse and Prof. Dowden, will appear, it is hoped, at no long interval after the present volume. The first volume, on the Early Literature, had been undertaken by Mr. Stopford Brooke; but, it being doubtful whether his other engagements will admit of his fulfilling his intention, arrangements are in progress for placing the work in other competent hands.

THE AGE OF QUEEN ANNE. By EDMUND GOSSE.

THE MODERN PERIOD. By PROFESSOR E. DOWDEN.

A NEW GEOGRAPHICAL SERIES.

THE neglect of Geography as an important branch of education has long been recognised in this country. But little has yet been done to remedy the evil. Where the subject is taught at all it is usually made a task for the memory rather than an exercise of the observing and reasoning faculties. Yet, employed as it might be, it possesses peculiar advantages as an instrument of education. Beginning with the objects and experiences of daily life, it may be used to awaken and sustain the interest, and even the enthusiasm of pupils. From the familiar topography of their schoolroom and playground, the youngest scholars may be imperceptibly led onward to just and vivid conceptions of the various countries and climates of the globe. There is a perennial human interest about Geography that may be made to play round even the driest pathways of scientific disquisition. Every one is concerned to know how the dry land has come to wear its present forms, why its climates vary from region to region, what has determined the characteristic grouping of plants and animals in different countries, how the career of mankind has been moulded by the physical features of the earth's surface, and how far human interference has changed the aspects of nature. These problems, and many others akin to them, are peculiarly fitted to present, in the most intelligible and attractive form, the nature and methods of scientific observation and deduction. A teacher, well qualified for his task, may employ them as an admirable means of kindling in his pupils a love of nature, and of developing habits of observation which will be of inestimable value in after life.

That Geography has not yet attained in this country the position which its real value as a means of education entitles it to hold, may be traced to various causes. To overcome the obstacles in its way, and to surmount the indifference of the long use and wont which has kept it in its present position of degradation, will not be accomplished in a day. Vigorous efforts are now being made to remedy the present unsatisfactory state of things. It appears probable that one of the most effective methods of raising the standard of geographical teaching will be to place in the hands of teachers a series of class-books written from an entirely different point of view from those now in use, by authors of established reputation in their own domain of investigation. Formerly science text-books were left in the hands of mere book-makers or compilers; but it has for some years past been recognised that a satisfactory text-book of any science can only be obtained from an acknowledged original master of the subject. And there seems no reason why class-books of Geography should not now be prepared in the same way.

But one of the chief difficulties to be encountered in such an undertaking is that, through no fault of their own, teachers have comparatively seldom been taught to know what geography really is, and they need therefore to be themselves trained in the art of teaching it. The first principles of geography, however, cannot be effectively taught from books. They must be enforced practically from familiar local illustrations. The first endeavour of the teacher should be to lay a solid geographical basis, founded upon the pupil's own personal experience, and not until some progress in this respect has been made can he expect to make advantageous use of a class-book. The first book, therefore, in a series of works intended for effective geographical teaching, should be one for the teacher, full of suggestions and illustrations to aid him in his work of oral instruction.

For the pupils, the earliest geographical lesson-book put into their hands should be one that will take up their training at the point to which the oral lessons and demonstration of the teacher have brought them. It should deal with their own country, carrying out the same kind of instruction to which they have already become accustomed. Afterwards, class-books treating of other countries and continents, of the world as a whole and of its planetary relations, will be reached.

Throughout such a series of geographical class-books the fundamental idea should be to present the essential facts in such a way as will show their relationship to each other, and will convey to the mind of the pupil a clear picture of the country or subject described. For instance, the physical features will be connected with the climatology of a country, and both will be shown to affect the distribution of life, while the bearing of all these influences upon human history and commercial progress will be constantly kept in view. The boundaries of parishes and countries, the positions of towns and the diffusion of population, will be linked with their geographical explanation. A knowledge of the topography of a country, and of the local names by which it is expressed, will be shown to be the necessary accompaniment of an adequate knowledge of the history of the inhabitants. In short, it should be a constant aim to represent geography not as a series of numerical tables or a string of disconnected facts, but as a luminous description of the earth and its inhabitants, and of the causes that regulate the contrasts of the scenery, climate, and life.

Messrs. MACMILLAN & Co. propose to issue a series of geographical class-books prepared with this aim. They have placed the editorship of the series in the hands of Mr. ARCHIBALD GEIKIE, F.R.S., Director-General of the Geological Survey of the United Kingdom, and the following gentlemen have already expressed their interest in the undertaking, and their willingness to assist either as writers or advisers.
